Whittington, 2018-01-23 An interdisciplinary study of one of the most important monuments in Islamic art British Propaganda and News Media in the Cold War John Jenks, 2006-04-19 This is a study of the British state s generation suppression and manipulation of news to further foreign policy goals during the early Cold War Bribing editors blackballing unreliable journalists creating instant media experts through provision of carefully edited inside information and exploiting the global media system to plant propaganda disguised as news around the world these were all methods used by the British to try to convince the international public of Soviet deceit and criminality and thus gain support for anti Soviet policies at home and abroad Britain s shaky international position heightened the importance of propaganda The Soviets and Americans were investing heavily in propaganda to win the hearts and minds of the world and substitute for increasingly unthinkable nuclear war The British exploited and enhanced their media power and propaganda expertise to keep up with the superpowers and preserve their own global influence at a time when British economic political and military power was sharply declining This activity directly influenced domestic media relations as officials used British media to launder foreign bound propaganda and to create the desired images of British public opinion for foreign audiences By the early 1950s censorship waned but covert propaganda had become addictive The endless tension of the Cold War normalized what had previously been abnormal state involvement in the media and led it to use similar tools against Egyptian nationalists Irish republicans and British leftists Much more recently official manipulation of news about Iraq indicates that a behind the scenes examination of state propaganda s earlier days is highly relevant John Jenks draws heavily on recently declassified archival material for this book especially files of the Foreign Office s anti Communist Information Research Department IRD propaganda agency and the papers of key media organisations journalists politicians and officials Readers will therefore gain a greater understanding of the depth of the state s power with the media at a time when concerns about propaganda and media manipulation are once again at the fore

Propaganda, Censorship and Irish Neutrality in the Second World War Robert Cole, 2006-02-22 Allied propaganda and Eire censorship were a vital part of the conflict over Irish neutrality in the Second World War Based upon original research in archives in Ireland Great Britain the United States and Canada this study opens a new page in the history of wartime propaganda and censorship It examines the channels of propaganda including the press and other print media broadcasting and film employed in Eire and the agencies which operated them and the structure and operations of the Eire censorship bureau which sought to repress them It also looks at the role played by Irish Americans in the conflict some of whom supported while others opposed Irish neutrality Which side could win this war of words Could British and American propaganda overcome Eire neutrality or would re censorship guarantee that it could not In this detailed and wide ranging examination of the war of words over Eire neutrality the author addresses such subjects as public opinion government policies propaganda planning objectives content and channels of dissemination and the purpose and tactics of censorship

Ireland and the Problem of Information Damien Keane, 2014-10-23 Though the work of Irish writers has been paramount in conventional accounts of literary modernism Ireland itself only rarely occupies a meaningful position in accounts of modernism s historical trajectory With an itinerary moving not simply among Dublin Belfast and London but also Paris New York Addis Ababa Rome Berlin Geneva and the world s radio receivers Ireland and the Problem of Information examines the pivotal mediations through which social knowledge was produced in the mid twentieth century Organized as a series of cross fading case studies the book argues that an expanded sphere of Irish cultural production should be read as much for what it indicates about practices of intermedial circulation and their consequences as for what it reveals about Irish writing around the time of the Second World War In this way it positions the problem of information as first and foremost an international predicament but one with particular national implications for the Irish field
