Delusions and the Madness of the Masses Lawrie Reznek, 2010-11-16 We all think that we can tell the difference between someone who is mad or whom psychiatrists call psychotic and someone who is sane But can we really tell who is mad and who is not Do we really know what madness is and how it should be recognized Have psychiatrists made a sensible distinction between the patient who believes that aliens are beaming messages to him from a foreign planet and the religious fanatic who believes God communicates to him via automatic writing Is there a difference between the paranoid patient who believes that the FBI is after him and the sizeable proportion of our normal population that believe that the US government orchestrated the 9 11 bombings Here Reznek hopes to shed light on the delusions of the masses those delusions that are common to everyday people living so called ordinary lives He provides an understanding of madness and the psychological processes that drive us to adopt delusions arguing that it is a mistake to view only schizophrenic patients as delusional while excluding large groups of society from such an analysis If we abandon the idea that whole communities cannot share a delusion we can come to a better understanding about why

Primary and Secondary Qualities Lawrence Nolan,2011-04-07 Fourteen new essays trace the historical development of the distinction between primary and secondary qualities a key topic in metaphysics epistemology and philosophy of perception The volume starts with the ancient Greeks discusses virtually all major figures of the early modern era and reflects on the place of the topic in philosophy today Problems from Reid James Van Cleve,2015-08-25 In this systematic study James Van Cleve expounds Thomas Reid s positions and arguments on topics in the philosophy of perception knowledge and action taking interpretive stands on points where his meaning is disputed and assessing the extent to which his ideas make valuable contributions to issues philosophers are discussing today Mindmelding William Hirstein,2012-01-26 In this important and controversial new book William Hirstein argues that it is possible for one person to directly experience the conscious states of another by way of what he calls mindmelding Drawing on a range of research from neuroscience psychology and philosophy he presents a highly original new account of consciousness Foundation for a Natural Morality Edmund Wall,2018-10-15 Few philosophers attempt to establish that there is an evaluative and moral realm They make these major assumptions without argument This plays into the hands of moral nihilists and certain other moral skeptics A major obstacle that prevents philosophers from developing such arguments is the long standing view that one cannot derive an ought from an is that is one cannot begin with purely descriptive non evaluative propositions and deduce an evaluative or moral proposition In this book Edmund Wall develops arguments for evaluative and moral principles His deductive reasoning begins with certain purely descriptive and non evaluative propositions concerning human nature establishing a basic moral principle of human life and a basic moral principle of knowledge By providing such deductive arguments for basic moral principles Wall makes considerable progress in establishing a sure foundation for morality He further develops his case by responding to a plethora of anticipated objections against his two arguments and by delineating the advantages of his own moral approach over a number of influential moral theories and competing accounts of moral reasoning
