Animation and Performance Capture Using Digitized Models Edilson de Aguiar, 2009-12-08 The realistic generation of virtual doubles of real world actors has been the focus of computer graphics research for many years However some problems still remain unsolved it is still time consuming to generate character animations using the traditional skeleton based pipeline passive performance capture of human actors wearing arbitrary everyday apparel is still challenging and until now there is only a limited amount of techniques for processing and modifying mesh animations in contrast to the huge amount of skeleton based techniques In this thesis we propose algorithmic solutions to each of these problems First two efficient mesh based alternatives to simplify the overall character animation process are proposed Although abandoning the concept of a kinematic skeleton both techniques can be directly integrated in the traditional pipeline generating animations with realistic body deformations Thereafter three passive performance capture methods are presented which employ a deformable model as underlying scene representation The techniques are able to jointly reconstruct spatio temporally coherent time varying geometry motion and textural surface appearance of subjects wearing loose and everyday apparel Moreover the acquired high quality reconstructions enable us to render realistic 3D Videos At the end two novel algorithms for processing mesh animations are described The first one enables the fully automatic conversion of a mesh animation into a skeletonbased animation and the second one automatically converts a mesh animation into an animation collage a new artistic style for rendering animations The methods described in the thesis can be regarded as solutions to specific problems or important building blocks for a larger application As a whole they form a powerful system to accurately capture manipulate and realistically render realworld human performances exceeding the capabilities of many related capture techniques By this means we are able to correctly capture the motion the timevarying details and the texture information of a real human performing and transform it into a fully rigged character animation that can be directly used by an animator or use it to realistically display the actor from arbitrary viewpoints
