New Zealand Art Architecture 1820 1970 New Zealand Art:

Architecture and Urbanism in the British Empire G. A. Bremner, 2016-10-13 Throughout today's postcolonial world buildings monuments parks streets avenues entire cities even remain as witness to Britain's once impressive if troubled imperial past These structures are a conspicuous and near inescapable reminder of that past and therefore the built heritage of Britain's former colonial empire is a fundamental part of how we negotiate our postcolonial identities often lying at the heart of social tension and debate over how that identity is best represented This volume provides an overview of the architectural and urban transformations that took place across the British Empire between the seventeenth and mid twentieth centuries Although much research has been carried out on architecture and urban planning in Britain's empire in recent decades no single comprehensive reference source exists The essays compiled here remedy this deficiency With its extensive chronological and regional coverage by leading scholars in the field this volume will quickly become a seminal text for those who study teach and research the relationship between empire and the built environment in the British context It provides an up to date account of past and current historiographical approaches toward the study of British imperial and colonial architecture and urbanism and will prove equally useful to those who study architecture and urbanism in other European imperial and transnational contexts The volume is divided in two main sections The first section deals with overarching thematic issues including building typologies major genres and periods of activity networks of expertise and the transmission of ideas the intersection between planning and politics as well as the architectural impact of empire on Britain itself The second section builds on the first by discussing these themes in relation to specific geographical regions teasing out the variations and continuities observable in context both practical and theoretical

Modern Architecture: A Critical History (Fifth) (World of Art) Kenneth Frampton, 2020-09-08 An extensively revised and updated edition of a bestselling classic on modern architecture and its origins by Kenneth Frampton Kenneth Frampton's highly acclaimed survey of modern architecture and its origins has been a classic since it first appeared in 1980 Starting with the cultural developments since 1750 that drove the modern movement moving through the creation of modern architecture and exploring the effects of globalization and the phenomenon of international celebrity architects this book is the definitive history of modern architecture For this extensively revised and updated fifth edition of Modern Architecture Frampton added new chapters exploring the ongoing modernist tradition in architecture while also examining the varied responses to the urgent need to build more sustainably and create structures that will withstand changing climates This new edition features completely redesigned interiors and an updated and expanded bibliography making this volume more indispensable than ever

New Zealand Sculpture Michael Dunn, 2002 This work charts the growth of sculpture in this former British colony from the era of British imports through a period of strong British influence to the more confident art of the 20th century using a wider set of sources and materials and more personal forms of expression

Architecture Henry-Russell Hitchcock, 1987-01-01 This book examines a period which is far more than a prelude to the age of steel and concrete The first half century culminated in the bold iron and glass of the Crystal Palace There follows the creation of the modern styles of the era based on traditions of the past and finally in the 20th century Art Nouveau and the modern architects in their generations Perret Wright Gropius Corbusier Mies van der Rohe and others in many parts of the world

The Natural History of New Zealand Gordon R. Williams, 1973

New Zealand Art John Stacpoole, Peter Beaven, 1972 This survey of New Zealand architecture the first to be separately

published begins with precolonial buildings in the Far North and ends not far short of the present day For easier consideration of the different influences at work the period has been broken into three parts 1820 80 1880 1920 1920 1970 Within this framework the authors have chosen to illustrate buildings which best represent their time or which epitomise some important development No building has been ruled out because of familiarity but equally text and photographs have sometimes been allowed to take unexpected directions The aim of the authors has been to lay out the pattern of architectural design over 150 years and to encourage the general reader and those newly interested in architecture to look hard at buildings which have had only casual attention before Selection particularly of the work of living architects has often been difficult and some fine buildings have been excluded Some have simply been casualties of the necessary limitation of numbers Inside front cover Vertical Living Julia Gatley, 2014-10-01 In 1946 a group of students and idealists got together to realise their visions for a modern city Over the following half century the Architectural Centre they founded helped to shape the possibilities of modern life in urban New Zealand and profoundly influenced the remaking of the capital city of Wellington More than just an association of architects the Centre furthered education published a magazine Design Review hosted modernist exhibitions in its gallery staged an audacious campaign for political influence called the Project and fought for better planning better design better built environments in Wellington Its members also built a demonstration house but planning was the battle cry Charting these activists and their projects over the years Julia Gatley and Paul Walker in Vertical Living also offer a history of urban Wellington from the 1940s to the 1990s and beyond The book reminds us that in modernist ideology architecture and urban planning went hand in hand with visual and craft arts graphic and industrial design In recovering the multi disciplinary history politics and planning of the Architectural Centre Gatley and Walker begin writing the city back into the history of architecture in New Zealand Shifting Views Andrew Leach, Antony Moulis, Nicole Sully, 2008 Shifting Views draws together a selection of writing from across twenty five years of these conferences to provide a fascinating view into the region s architectural history discipline The essays collected here from such diverse thinkers as Judith Brine Joan Kerr Miles Lewis Sarah Treadwell Philip Goad Julie Willis and Mike Austin reflect some of the most illuminating debates from these conferences Together these essays capture a tone of critical inquiry and the conditions of writing architectural history in Australia and New Zealand Shifting Views takes us into the mechanics of architectural history making exposing its foundations and demonstrating how they can be called to account It shows us how architectural history has been made and revised giving us a glimpse of the means why which our past becomes our history BOOK JACKET

Buildings of Empire Ashley Jackson, 2013-11-28 Buildings of Empire takes the reader on an exciting journey through thirteen territories of the British Empire From Dublin Castle to the glass and steel of Sir Norman Foster s Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank skyscraper these buildings capture the essence of the imperial experience painting an intimate portrait of the biggest empire the world has ever seen the people who made it and the people who resisted it as well as the legacy of the imperial project throughout the world Ashley Jackson visits classic examples of the buildings that the British governed from the forts they often brutally imposed their rule from the railway stations they travelled from the banks they traded from the educational establishments they spread their values from as well as the grand colonial hotels they stayed in the sporting clubs and botanical gardens where they took their leisure and the monumental exhibition spaces in which they celebrated the achievements of settlement and imperial endeavour The history of these buildings does not end with the empire that built them Their story in the aftermath of empire highlights the continuing legacy of many of the structures and institutions the British left behind as well as the sometimes unexpected role that these former symbols of alien rule have played in the establishment of new national identities in the years since independence New Zealand Books in Print ,1974

Theology in Stone Richard Kieckhefer,2004-04-08 Thinking about church architecture has come to an impasse Reformers and traditionalists are talking past each other In Theology in Stone Richard Kieckhefer seeks to help both sides move beyond the standoff toward a fruitful conversation about houses of worship Drawing on a wide range of historical examples with an eye to their contemporary relevance he offers refreshing new ideas about the meanings and uses of church architecture

Conservation of Architectural and Urban Heritage Tarek Teba,Antonino Di Raimo,2025-08-05 This book peers into the concept of conservation under the framework of sustainability The world s architectural history is in danger due to a lack of understanding expertise and care Some monuments have already been lost and more are under threat Heritage needs to be well understood interpreted defined and managed for future generations as it provides communities and cultures with retrospection and contributes to recorded history Additionally it discusses the relationship between cultural heritage preservation and sustainable development as well as restoration efforts for tangible and intangible cultural heritage assets The book aims to assist professionals working in the field of heritage conservation whether it is cultural rural architectural tangible or intangible It stands to be a valuable resource for architects and engineers as well as for conservators
