Population, Resources and Development Shripad Tuljapurkar,David Ian Pool,2005 In the 21st century the populations of the world s nations will display large and long lived changes in age structure Many of these began with fertility change and are amplified by declining mortality and by migration within and between nations Demography will matter in this century not by force of numbers but by the pressures of waves of age structural change Many developing countries are in relatively early stages of fertility decline and will experience age waves for two or more generations These waves create shifting flows of people into Population, Resources, and the Environment Ronald Gene Ridker,1972 Effects of Population Growth on Natural Resources and the Environment United States. Congress. House. Government Operations,1969

Effects of Population Growth on Natural Resources and the Environment United States. Congress. House. Committee on Government Operations. Conservation and Natural Resources Subcommittee,1969 Population, Resources and Development Jane Chrispin,Francis Jegede,1996 Population, Resources, Environment and Development Nations Unides. Expert Group on Population, Resources, Environment and Development,1984 Population and Society Dr. Gajanafar Alam,2021-09-15 Population explosion leads to social problems like unemployment poverty low economic development etc The social development which is determined by better health care facilities education and high literacy rate and improvement in the standard of living of people are adversely affected due to high population The benefits of government schemes do not reach the masses A vast share of GDP is required to keep the level of per capita income constant The weaker sections of the population do not get the share of the development For equitable social development the government should aim not only at controlling the unregulated human growth of numerical strength but also at checking the unregulated movement of the population and increasing the concentration of people in the urbanized areas and providing adequate living space and other facilities These goals have to be jointly linked with the formulation and implementation of policies aimed at population regulation and planning for harnessing both natural and human resources Thus only population growth per se may not be perceived as a problem but its relation with the availability of resources may be viewed with great concern This
