Population And Climate Change:

Climate Change and Population Health: A Primer Mona Sarfaty, 2020-10-23 Climate Change and Population Health begins by explaining the global warming and climate change by looking back historically reviewing current measurement techniques and results and taking into consideration greenhouse gases and their origins It then looks at the health impact as well as who is most effected by climate change before guiding students on how to effectively communicate about climate change as a means of helping people to protect themselves Finally it discusses possible policy solutions that might be beneficial to help mitigate health issues caused by climate change Population, Climate Change, and Women's Lives Robert Engelman, 2010 The report draws on new studies that document the environmental pressures from soaring population growth It also reports on the unique role that women can play in alleviating those pressures even as women are disproportionately affected by the adverse effects of climate change Finally the report argues that humanity ultimately will need to slow population growth to tackle rising global temperatures and that the only way to do this is by improving the well being of women worldwide

Population Dynamics and Climate Change José Miguel Guzmán, 2009 This book broadens and deepens understanding of a wide range of population climate change linkages Incorporating population dynamics into research policymaking and advocacy around climate change is critical for understanding trajectory of global greenhouse gas emissions for developing and implementing adaptation plans and thus for global and national efforts to curtail this threat The papers in this volume provide a substantive and methodological guide to the current state of knowledge on issues such as population growth and size and emissions population vulnerability and adaptation linked to health gender disparities and children migration and urbanization and the data and analytical needs for the next stages of policy relevant research Climate Change and Population Displacement Marcia Amidon Lusted, 2019-07-15 While politicians debate whether or not climate change is real extreme weather rages around the world Whatever the cause the effects are real as evidenced by staggering numbers of displaced people These climate refugees through no fault of their own have meaningful impacts on populations economies and even cultural makeup How can world leaders adapt to these changes In this fascinating resource writers from around the world offer their takes on the current crises as well as predictions for the future Human Population as a Driver to Climate Change. Conflict between Human Population Growth and Climate Change in Developing Countries Sayed Ahmad Fahim Masoumi, 2021-04-13 Research Paper postgraduate from the year 2021 in the subject Nature Protection Landscape Conservation grade 2 0 Rhine Waal University of Applied Sciences course Sustainable Development Management language English abstract This paper deals with the impact of the growth of human population on climate change After an introduction the impact of climate change will be discussed The cost of climate change and the energy the human population is consuming is analysed Furthermore the human population as a driver to climate change will be evaluated Our world is overpopulated and we are struggling to feed everyone and fulfil each individual s needs The poverty and hunger in developing countries are rising and in the same environment we are witnessing an increase in the population We have 80 million births each year with an anticipated 9.7 billion people by 2050 These are not just simple numbers they need a decent place to live access to water food security clean air and sustainable cities with affordable energy Global warming can be seen as flood drought ice melt disease food insecurity and other natural disasters It is found that climate change can displace 143 million people by 2050 and there will be conflicts between nations over natural resources In today's world we still have inequality between developed and least developed countries in various sectors and levels A transformation to reduce climate change effects can create over 65 million jobs but failing to cope with climate change can result in losing 80 million jobs by 2030 In terms of the economy the climate change catastrophe cost us US 165 billion globally in 2019 Forests are vital players in reducing CO₂ emissions but the desertification of forests by humans includes 23 % of carbon emission The transformation from fossil fuels to green energy can bring us US 52 trillion in a year Also biodiversity has a significant contribution to our ecosystem and their preservation must be part of our responsibility To have proper nutrition drinking water decent economic growth sustainable cities and several other human friendly concepts in our world we are required to control our population growth This can happen by educating girls about contraception methods family planning preventing child marriages and removing traditional and cultural barriers Population and Climate Change Brian C. O'Neill, 2001 Population and Climate Change Brian O'Neill, 1999 The Crowded Greenhouse John Firor, Judith E. Jacobsen, 2008-10-01 This book focuses on two critical global issues rapid population growth and a human induced climate change John Firor and Judith Jacobsen summarize the current status of these two issues show how they are related to one another and prescribe steps that governments economies societies and individuals can adopt to stabilize both population and climate Firor and Jacobsen argue that two revolutions are necessary to achieve a stable population and freedom from human induced climate change a social revolution that improves equity particularly the status of women and a technical revolution that yields vastly greater efficiency in energy and materials use than we have today They offer a vision that incorporates these changes and they urge professionals and activists to work to achieve them even in the face of great odds Handbook of the Philosophy of Climate Change Gianfranco Pellegrino, Marcello Di Paola, 2023-11-24 This Handbook offers a broad yet unified treatment of many philosophical issues connected with climate change ranging from foundational puzzles to detailed applications It extends to many branches of philosophy that are relevant to the understanding of the premises and implications of the impacts of climate change on human and nonhuman life on Earth More specifically the handbook examines the scientific accounts of climate change as well as its causes It explores the tools offered by social sciences and humanities to study the societal premises and impacts of climate change as well as delving deeper into the ethical and political issues connected with and resulting from climate change By doing so it puts it all in an ecological and historical context In addition the book offers solutions to some important philosophical puzzles and problems and indicates paths of interaction between philosophy and other disciplines The discussion about climate change and the mitigation adaptation policies spans many areas and levels from abstract science and philosophy to current on the ground politics However climate change is also a great a philosophical puzzle Indeed its existential and practical relevance can be thought to largely derive from the philosophical complications it engenders Climate change is applied philosophy par excellence Preventing dangerous anthropogenic climate change needs very good philosophy applied to concrete and specific practical issues Climate change is an area where scholars from very different provenances should cooperate on equal terms having in view a common and really important purpose contribute to preventing great burdens and even the extinction of humankind and the destruction of hospitable and valuable non human nature

Environmental Change and Security Project Report ,2003

The Relationship Between Health and Environment Under the Lens of Climate Change: Insights for Policy Makers Paolo Vineis, Greta Colombi, 2025-02-14 The past year 2023 has been so far the hottest on track and sure enough it won't keep this record long We have already reached almost 1.5 C above the preindustrial average and the recent first Global Stocktake carried out at COP 28 which was held in Dubai last December 2023 revealed that we still need to enhance dramatically the efforts at the international level to meet Paris Agreement's goals The impacts of climate change along with other forms of anthropic pressures not only involve devastating consequences for ecosystems biodiversity and the resilience of the socio ecological systems we live in but as it is emerging from the latest trends in scientific research it poses under serious threat also public health and well being

Climate Change Trevor Letcher, 2009-05-08 The climate of the Earth is always changing As the debate over the implications of changes in the Earth's climate has grown the term climate change has come to refer primarily to changes we've seen over recent years and those which are predicted to be coming mainly as a result of human behavior This book serves as a broad accessible guide to the science behind this often political and heated debate by providing scientific detail and evidence in language that is clear to both the non specialist and the serious student Provides all the scientific evidence for and possible causes of climate change in one book Written by expert scientists working in the field Logical non emotional conclusions A source book for the latest findings on climate change Systemic Crises of Global Climate Change Phoebe Godfrey, Denise Torres, 2016-04-14 Sociological literature tends to view the social categories of race class and gender as distinct and has avoided discussing how multiple intersections inform and contribute to experiences of injustice and inequity This limited focus is clearly inadequate Systemic Crises of Global Climate Change is an edited volume of 49 international interdisciplinary contributions addressing global climate change GCC by intentionally engaging with the issues of race gender and class through an intersectional lens The volume challenges and inspires readers to foster new theoretical and practical linkages and think beyond the traditional and oftentimes reductionist environmental science frame by examining issues within their turbulent political cultural and personal landscapes Varied media and writing styles invite students and educators to reflexively engage different yet complementary approaches to GCC analysis and interpretation mirroring the disparate voices and viewpoints within the field The second volume Emergent Possibilities for Sustainability will take a similar approach but will examine the possibilities for solutions as in the quest for global sustainability This book is a valuable resource for academics researchers and both undergraduate and post graduate students in the areas of Environmental Studies Climate Change Gender Studies and International studies as well as those seeking a more intersectional analysis of GCC Climate Change 2001: The Scientific Basis J. T. Houghton, Y. Ding, D. J. Griggs, M. Noguer, P. J. van der Linden, X. Dai, K. Maskell, C. A. Johnson, 2001-07-12 Climate Change 2001 The Scientific Basis is the most comprehensive and up to date scientific assessment of past present and future climate change The report Analyses an enormous body of observations of all parts of the climate system Catalogues increasing concentrations of atmospheric greenhouse gases Assesses our understanding of the processes and feedbacks which govern the climate system Projects scenarios of future climate change using a wide range of models of future emissions of greenhouse gases and aerosols Makes a detailed study of whether a human influence on climate can be identified Suggests gaps in information and understanding that remain in our knowledge of climate change and how these might be addressed This latest IPCC assessment will again form the standard scientific reference for all concerned with climate change and its consequences including students and researchers in all aspects of environmental and atmospheric science and policymakers in governments and industry worldwide Too Many People? Ian Angus, Simon Butler, 2011-10-18 Too Many People provides a clear well documented and popularly written refutation of the idea that overpopulation is a major cause of environmental destruction arguing that a focus on human numbers not only misunderstands the causes of the crisis it dangerously weakens the movement for real solutions No other book challenges modern overpopulation theory so clearly and comprehensively providing invaluable insights for the layperson and environmental scholars alike Ian Angus is editor of the ecosocialist journal Climate and Capitalism and Simon Butler is co editor of Green Left Weekly As Climate Changes Kenneth M. Strzepek, Joel B. Smith, 1995-12-07 As Climate Changes International Impacts and Implications is the most comprehensive study to date examining potential global effects of climate change. The project, which was funded by the US Environmental Protection Agency, involved over 150 scientists from around the world. Common climate change scenarios were used to examine impacts on agriculture, water resources, coastal resources, forests, and human health. The studies focused on impacts of climate change on developing countries around the world and included an integrated case study of Egypt. In addition, the agriculture and forests studies also examined global effects. The studies found that developing countries may be more vulnerable to climate change because some impacts may be more negative on these countries; they have a higher share of national income in climate-sensitive sectors and they have fewer resources to adapt to climate change. This volume summarises the methods and findings from these studies. The Environmental Implications of Population Dynamics Lori M. Hunter, 2000. This report discusses the relationship between population and environmental change, the forces that mediate this relationship, and how population dynamics specifically affect climate change and land use change. Migratory Species and Climate Change United Nations Environment Programme, 2006. There is substantial evidence that wildlife is being affected by climate change. As a group, migratory wildlife appears to be particularly vulnerable because of the use of multiple habitats. The UNEP Convention on Migratory Species (CMS) is the only global agreement dealing with this problem. This publication, containing contributions from experts around the world, explores the current state of knowledge and what can be done in mitigation. It also has a case study on marine turtles, which are already showing an increased rate of tumours caused by warmer waters.
