Introduction to Population Ecology Larry L. Rockwood,2015-06-15 Introduction to Population Ecology 2nd Edition is a comprehensive textbook covering all aspects of population ecology It uses a wide variety of field and laboratory examples botanical to zoological from the tropics to the tundra to illustrate the fundamental laws of population ecology Controversies in population ecology are brought fully up to date in this edition with many brand new and revised examples and data Each chapter provides an overview of how population theory has developed followed by descriptions of laboratory and field studies that have been inspired by the theory Topics explored include single species population growth and self limitation life histories metapopulations and a wide range of interspecific interactions including competition mutualism parasite host predator prey and plant herbivore An additional final chapter new for the second edition considers multi trophic and other complex interactions among species Throughout the book the mathematics involved is explained with a step by step approach and graphs and other visual aids are used to present a clear illustration of how the models work Such features make this an accessible introduction to population ecology essential reading for undergraduate and graduate students taking courses in population ecology applied ecology conservation ecology and conservation biology including those with little mathematical experience

The Prehistory of Human Migration Rintaro Ono,Alfred Pawlik,2024-07-10 The Prehistory of Human Migration Human Expansion Resource Use and Mortuary Practice in Maritime Asia presents the current state of archaeological research on the migration and expansion of the first modern humans Homo sapiens into the maritime regions of Asia and Oceania This area which stretches geographically from the North and Southeast Asian mainland through the archipelagos of Japan the Philippines and Indonesia all the way to Oceania has provided us with numerous new insights and discoveries based on data from archaeological and bioanthropological research thus revealing the cognitive abilities as well as the behavioural adaptations and technological innovations of these early islanders and seafarers that led to the successful colonization of this unique island world In seven chapters devoted to the themes Modern Human Migration to Maritime Asia and Oceania Modern Human Migration Technology and Resource Use in Maritime Asia and Modern Human Migration and Mortuary Practices in Maritime Asia leading archaeologists present their research in Wallacea the Ryukyu Islands East Asia and the coastal regions of Northeast and Northeast Asia and discuss their findings on early modern human migration to Maritime Asia the utilization of its diverse resources and the belief systems of these early islanders during the Late Pleistocene An Analysis of the Population Dynamics of Selected Avian Species Charles J. Henny, 1972 Describes the activities of a variety of animals from sunset to sunrise Monthly Catalogue, United States Public Documents, 1994 Monthly Catalog of United States Government Publications, 1994 Climate Change and Northern Fish Populations National Research Council Canada, Canada. Department of Fisheries and Oceans, 1995 These documents summarize some of the recent studies of the relationships among climate the aquatic environment and the dynamics of fish populations The studies are mostly from the North Pacific ocean but there are reports of investigations from the North Atlantic Ocean and from fresh water Various papers include numerous examples of the relationships between fish abundance trends and the environment The Ecology of Large Mammals in Central Yellowstone Robert A. Garrott, Patrick J. White, Fred G.R. Watson, 2008-11-25 This book is an authoritative work on the ecology of some of America's most iconic large mammals in a natural environment and of the interplay between climate landscape and animals in the interior of the world's first and most famous national park Central Yellowstone includes the range of one of the largest migratory populations of bison in North America as well as a unique elk herd that remains in the park year round These populations live in a varied landscape with seasonal and often extreme patterns of climate and food abundance The reintroduction of wolves into the park a decade ago resulted in scientific and public controversy about the effect of large predators on their prey a debate closely examined in the book Introductory chapters describe the geography geology and vegetation of the ecosystem The elk and bison are then introduced and their population ecology described both pre and post wolf introduction enabling valuable insights into the demographic and behavioral consequences for their ungulate prey Subsequent chapters describe the wildlife human interactions and show how scientific research can inform the debate and policy issues surrounding winter recreation in Yellowstone The book closes with a discussion of how this ecological knowledge can be used to educate the public both about Yellowstone itself and about science ecology and the environment in general Yellowstone National Park exemplifies some of the currently most hotly debated and high profile ecological wildlife management and environmental policy issues and this book will have broad appeal not only to academic ecologists but also to natural resource students managers biologists policy makers administrators and the general public Unrivalled descriptions of ecological processes in a world famous ecosystem based on information from 16 years of painstaking field work and collaborations among 66 scientists and technical experts and 15 graduate studies Detailed studies of two charismatic North American herbivore species elk and bison Description of the restoration of wolves into central Yellowstone and their ecological interactions with their elk and bison prey Illustrated with numerous evocative colour

Linking Habitat Quality to Population Dynamics for Conservation Decision Making David R. Breininger, Doug P. Armstrong, Robert C. Lacy, James Nichols, 2025-04-09

Endangered Species Recovery planning is often based on predictions from population models. Species recovery is contingent on habitat restoration including reduction of threats such as predators and parasites. However, population predictions are rarely linked to habitat management, meaning that management cannot be easily guided by most formal decision making frameworks. Predicted recovery trajectories may depend not only on the type and extent of restoration but also the timing. For example, populations may initially continue to decline as habitat restoration takes place and their genetic diversity might need to be maintained during that process. There is also often considerable uncertainty about the effectiveness of proposed management in improving habitat quality and the effects of those improvements on population growth rates of the species targeted for recovery. We seek examples of approaches integrating habitat restoration and population dynamics to guide decision making. One example is where population data e.g. occupancy and habitat dynamics e.g. transition probabilities between states are directly integrated into a statistical likelihood. Another uses a metamodel to combine different interdisciplinary models e.g. population, habitat, disease, predator-prey to represent a more complex system integrating the flow of information and sequences of events among models. Decision frameworks to enhance species recovery could include management of relatively natural areas but also more intensively managed areas such as zoos or fragmented landscape with minimal long-term conservation potential for some species. Decision frameworks will ideally include adaptive management i.e. re-current decisions recognizing that conservation decisions often need to begin imminently and that delaying action is a decision. We invite articles that include several of the following elements in the context of conservation decision making: Explaining why it is important to consider animal or plant population and habitat dynamics together; Case studies, models or other demonstrations of how habitat and population dynamics should or can be linked; Examples may include remnant populations but also recent or prospective translocations; Explicit or decision making approaches including adaptive management for linking habitat and populations for conservation to guide conservation; Showing how loss of genetic variation in small populations can affect decisions given the time needed to restore habitat; reduced toxins; introduced predators; disease; Showing how variation in population and habitats over time and/or space are important for decisions about species recovery.

A Primer of Population Dynamics Krishnan Namboodiri, 2013-06-29

A Primer of Population Dynamics introduces to the basics of population studies. Author Krishnan Namboodiri utilizes a question and answer format that explores topics such as population theories and conceptual schemes, demographic data, mortality, fertility, migration, family and household, food production and the environment and much more.

Questions are accompanied by detailed explanations as well as references for additional information. An extensive index and glossary allow for easy retrieval of information. This introductory textbook is written for students studying demography, population sociology and public health. Biology of Sharks and Their Relatives Jeffrey C. Carrier, John A. Musick, Michael R. Heithaus, 2012-04-09. Virtually every area of research associated with sharks and their relatives has been strongly impacted by the revolutionary growth in technology. The questions we can now ask are very different than those reported even two decades ago. Modern immunological and genetic techniques, satellite telemetry and archival tagging, modern phylogenetic analysis.
