South Carolina which boasts America's first historic district is known for its palmetto lined streets and picturesque houses. The Holy City named for its profusion of churches exudes an irresistible charm. Award winning author and cultural critic Witold Rybczynski unfolds a series of stories about a group of youthful architects, builders and developers based in Charleston: a self taught home builder, an Air Force pilot, a fledgling architect and a bluegrass mandolin player. Beginning in the 1980s this cast of characters exercising a kind of amateur mastery produced an eclectic array of buildings inspired by the past including a domed Byzantine drawing room, a fanciful medieval castle, a restored freedman's cottage, a miniature Palladian villa and a contemporary Mediterranean street. In his careful profiles of these protagonists and the challenges they have overcome in realizing their dreams, Rybczynski compellingly emphasizes the importance of architecture and urban design on a local level, how an old city can remake itself by invention as well as replication and the role that individuals still play in transforming the urban landscapes around them.

Emerging Concepts in Urban Space Design Professor Geoffrey Broadbent, Geoffrey Broadbent, 2003-09-06. This important work now available in paperback from Professor Geoffrey Broadbent provides a clear analysis of the nature of many of today's design problems, identifying their causes in history and suggesting a basis for co-ordinated solutions. The author discusses picturesque and formal tendencies in modern architecture relating them to parallels between philosophic thought and design theory through the ages. Using a wealth of international examples from around the world including America, UK, Italy, Germany and France and with over 250 photographs and illustrations, Emerging Concepts in Space Design offers a fascinating insight into the history and likely future directions of urban design.

The Conservation Movement Miles Glendinning, 2013. Winner of the 2016 Antoinette Forrester Downing Award presented by the Society of Architectural Historians. In many cities across the world, particularly in Europe, old buildings form a prominent part of the built environment and we often take it for granted that their contribution is intrinsically positive. How has that widely shared belief come about and is its continued general acceptance inevitable? Certainly ancient structures have long been treated with care and reverence in many societies including classical Rome and Greece. But only in modern Europe and America in the last two centuries has this care been elaborated and energised into a forceful dynamic ideology: a Conservation Movement infused with a sense of historical destiny and loss that paradoxically shared many of the characteristics of Enlightenment modernity. The close inter-relationship between conservation and modern civilisation was most dramatically heightened in periods of war or social upheaval, beginning with the French Revolution and rising to a tragic climax in the 20th century age of totalitarian extremism. More recently, the troubled relationship of heritage and global commercialism has become dominant. Miles Glendinning's new book authoritatively presents for the first time the entire history of this architectural Conservation Movement and traces its dramatic fluctuations in ideas and popularity, ending by questioning whether its recent international ascendancy can last indefinitely.
