Powers of Persuasion Winston Fletcher, 2008-07-10 During much of the second half of the 20th century advertising in Britain led the world Yet no history of British advertising covering this heady period has previously been published During those years advertising increasingly came to touch upon almost every aspect of every individual's life and reached its peak as a proportion of the Gross National Product It boosted economic growth and people's affluence But at the same time the advertising industry was frequently undersiege as politicians pressure groups and others constantly sought to restrain its influence and often succeeded For several decades the creativity of British campaigns was preeminent around the globe But Powers of Persuasion is not just about advertisements it is about advertising During those years Britain was also a world leader in setting industry benchmarks innovating the account planning discipline setting the standard for public service advertising launching global advertising awards festivals introducing the best system of advertising regulation setting up both the world's largest advertising archive and the world's most comprehensive on line advertising research databank These were the keystones on which British creativity was built Simultaneously major British advertising companies particularly Saatchi Saatchi and WPP raced to the top of the global league Powers of Persuasion tells the authoritative story of this dynamic exhilarating era with pen portraits of the personalities involved anecdotes case histories and essential data Written from the inside by one of the industry's leaders this is a book for all interested in advertising and its role in society business and the media

Design: The Key Concepts Catherine McDermott, 2007-10-30 This is the essential student's guide to Design its practice its theory and its history Respected design writer Catherine McDermott draws from a wide range of international examples

Italian graphic design Chiara Barbieri, 2024-07-02 Italian graphic design offers a new perspective on the subject by exploring the emergence and articulation of graphic design practice from the interwar period through to the appearance of an international graphic design discourse in the 1960s The book asks how graphic designers learned their trade and investigates the ways in which they organised and made their practice visible while negotiating their collective identity with neighbouring practices such as typography advertising and industrial design Attention is drawn to everyday design practice educational issues mediating channels networks design exchange organisational strategies and discourses on modernism Drawing on a wide range of primary sources and placing an emphasis on visual analysis this book provides a model for a contextualised graphic design history as an integral part of the history of design and visual culture Hybrid

Practices in Moving Image Design Iain Macdonald, 2016-10-07 This book written from the perspective of a designer and educator brings to the attention of media historians fellow practitioners and students the innovative practices of leading moving image designers Moving image design whether viewed as television and movie title sequences movie visual effects animating infographics branding and advertising or as an art form is being increasingly recognised as an important dynamic part of contemporary culture For many practitioners this has been long overdue Central to these designers practice is the hybridisation of digital and heritage methods Macdonald uses interviews with world leading motion graphic designers moving image artists and Oscar nominated visual effects supervisors to examine the hybrid moving image which reinvigorates both heritage practices and the handmade and analogue crafts Now is the time to ensure that heritage skills do not atrophy but that their qualities and provenance are understood as potent components with digital practices in new hybrids Networks of Design Jonathan Glynn, Fiona Hackney, Minton, Viv, 2010-06 Networks of Design maps a new methodological territory in design studies conceived as a field of interdisciplinary inquiry and practice informed by a range of responses to actor network theory It brings together a rich body of current work by researchers in the social sciences technology material culture cultural geography information technology and systems design and design theory and history This collection will be invaluable to students and researchers in many areas of design studies and to design practitioners receptive to new and challenging notions of what constitutes the design process Over ninety essays are thematically organised to address five aspects of the expanded notions of mediation agency and collaboration posited by network theory Ideas Things Technology Texts and People The collection also includes an important new essay on rethinking the concept of design by Bruno Latour one of the most influential figures in the philosophy and sociology of science and technology and a pioneer of actor network theory and essays deriving from forum discussions involving designers and designer makers responsive to actor network theory Rather than an anthology of previously published essays Networks of Design presents work in progress on design theory and its applications It is the outcome of a live and vigorous debate on the possibilities and actualities offered by actor network led conceptualisations of the relationships and processes constituting design All the essays many collaborative derive from papers presented at the international conference of the Design History Society held at University College Falmouth UK in the Autumn of 2008 Imagining Illness David Serlin, 2010 Analyzing the visual culture of public health from the nineteenth century to the present Oxford Dictionary of National Biography 2005-2008 Lawrence
