perspective on children's rights      Sexuality and Transsexuality Under the European Convention on Human Rights

Damian A Gonzalez Salzberg, 2019-02-07 This book undertakes a critical analysis of international human rights law through the lens of queer theory. It pursues two main aims: first to make use of queer theory to illustrate that the field of human rights law is underpinned by several assumptions that determine a conception of the subject that is gendered and sexual in specific ways. This gives rise to multiple legal and social consequences, some of which challenge the very idea of universality of human rights. Second, the book proposes that human rights law can actually benefit from a better understanding of queer critiques, since queer insights can help it to overcome heteronormative beliefs currently held. In order to achieve these main aims, the book focuses on the case law of the European Court of Human Rights, the leading legal authority in the field of international human rights law. The use of queer theory as the theoretical approach for these tasks serves to deconstruct several aspects of the Court's jurisprudence dealing with gender, sexuality and kinship, to later suggest potential paths to reconstruct such features in a queerer and more universal manner.

Supranational citizenship Lynn Dobson, 2013-01-18 Can we conceptualise a kind of citizenship that need not be of a nation state but might be of a variety of political frameworks? Bringing together political theory with debates about European integration, international relations and the changing nature of citizenship, this book, available at last in paperback, offers a coherent and innovative theorisation of a citizenship independent of any specific form of political organisation. It relates that conception of citizenship to topical issues of the European Union, democracy and legitimate authority, non-national political community and the nature of the supranational constitution. The author argues that citizenship should no longer be seen as a status of privileged membership but instead as an institutional role enabling individuals' capacities to shape the context of their lives and promote the freedom and well-being of others. In doing so, she draws on and develops ideas found in the work of the philosopher Alan Gewirth.

Freedom of Religion or Belief in the European Convention on Human Rights Caroline K. Roberts,2023-11-23 The right to freedom of thought conscience and religion in Article 9 of the European Convention on Human Rights ECHR has become increasingly significant and contested Through an examination of ECHR Article 9 its drafting history and the related jurisprudence of the European Court of Human Rights ECtHR Caroline K Roberts challenges the classic approach to this right in the literature Roberts argues that claims that there is or should be a clear binary and hierarchical distinction between the absolutely protected internal realm and the qualified external realm in this right are not founded textually or jurisprudentially Rather the primary materials suggest that the internal and external aspects are deeply interrelated and this is reflected in the ECtHR's nuanced and holistic approach to ECHR Article 9 protection This comprehensive rigorous and up to date reappraisal of ECHR Article 9 and the related ECtHR jurisprudence will be essential reading for academics and practitioners
