Rex Abyssinian And Turkish Cats:

Rex, Abyssinian and Turkish Cats Alison E. Ashford, 1979 Abyssinian cat - Somali cat Le Chat Noir, The Abyssinian cat is one of the oldest feline breeds Defined for its movements like the miniature puma it attracts the gattophiles of the whole world with its elegant aesthetic harmony It is among the ten most widespread in the United States and among the five in North America while in Europe and in Italy it is less widespread The Abyssinians are cats of medium build short haired with an elegant posture and strong individuality The coat has an intense color and the ticking is clearly visible every single hair has a base color interrupted by two or three bands of darker pigment and always ends with the dark tip Its particular physical characteristics make it the fastest and most agile cat among all feline breeds Since the Abyssinians are carriers of the gene responsible for the long hair it is always possible that in a litter there are some semi longhair kitten Somalo It can reach even 18 20 years of age The Somali cat is the medium long hair variant of the Abyssinian from which it differs only for the length of the hair since the two breed standards correspond Somali is a combination of beauty and personality The first thing that catches our attention is the beauty and uniqueness of the Somali The semi long coat of Somali is soft and airy the coat has an extraordinary color it almost seems to have a mane The eyes are amber colored the big ears the long mustache and the fluent and vaporous tail always worn with a plume it looks like that of a squirrel Warning Somali can be addictive Once you ve had one you may find that no other cat can ever replace it Annual Yearbook Cat Fanciers' Association, 1985
