Movements for Human Rights David L. Brunsma, Keri Iyall Smith, Brian Gran, 2016-09-07 How do people work together to advance human rights Do people form groups to prevent human rights from being enforced Why In what ways do circumstances matter to the work of individuals collectively working to shape human rights practices Human society is made of individuals within contexts tectonic plates not of the earth s crust but of groups and individuals who scrape and shift as we bump along competing for scarce resources and getting along These movements large and small are the products of actions individuals take in communities within families and legal structures These individuals are able to live longer yet continue to remain vulnerable to dangers arising from the environment substances struggles for power and a failure to understand that in most ways we are the same as our neighbors Yet it is because we live together in layers of diverse communities that we want our ability to speak to be unhindered by others use spirituality to help us understand ourselves and others possess a space and objects that are ours alone and join with groups that share our values and interests including circumstances where we do not know who our fellow neighbor is For this reason sociologists have identified the importance of movements and change in human societies When we collaborate in groups individuals can change the contours of their daily lives Within this book you will find the building blocks for human rights in our communities To understand why sometimes we enjoy human rights and other times we experience vulnerability and risk sociologists seek to understand the individual within her context Bringing together prominent sociologists to grapple with these questions Movements for Human Rights Locally and Globally offers insights into the ways that people move for and against human rights

Contesting Austerity and Free Trade in the EU Julia Rone, 2020-11-24 The book explores the diffusion of protest against austerity and free trade agreements in the wave of contention that shook the EU following the 2008 economic crisis It discusses how protests against austerity and free trade agreements manifested a wider discontent with the constitutionalization of economic policy and the way economic decisions have been insulated from democratic debate It also explores the differentiated politicization of these issues and the diffusion of protests across Western as well as Eastern Europe which has often been neglected in studies of the post crisis turmoil Julia Rone emphasizes that far from being an automatic spontaneous process protest diffusion is highly complex and its success or failure can be impacted by the strategic agency and media practices of key political players involved such as bottom up activists as well as trade unions political parties NGOs intellectuals and mainstream media This is an important resource for media and communications students and scholars with an interest in activism political economy social movement studies and protest movements

Remaking Urban Citizenship Andrew M. Greeley, 2017-07-28 Due to heightened global migration and transnational mobility many residents of the world's cities lack national citizenship in the places to which they have moved for work refuge or retirement The disjuncture between citizenship and daily life has led to devolution of claims from national to urban space Within nation states characterized by structured inequalities citizens have not reduced their social differences This leads increasingly to calls for greater direct involvement of marginalized classes in reshaping the institutions and spaces directly affecting their lives These concerns cities without citizenship and people without political power inform the agendas of organizations that seek to restructure urban citizenship in more democratic directions Remaking Urban Citizenship focuses on the uses and limits of such political organizations and coalitions shows the various ways they pursue expanded rights within the city and describes the institutional changes necessary to empower global migrants and popular classes as urban citizens Offering individual or comparative case studies of cities in the United States Europe and China contributions to this volume describe the development of actual practices of organizations working to reinvigorate citizenship at the urban scale Collectively they locate institutional forms that help migrants lay claim to their cities show how migrants can become politically empowered and identify how they can expand their rights or find other ways to belong

Fighting for Peace Lisa Leitz, 2014-04-15 Fighting for Peace brings to light an important yet neglected aspect of opposition to the Iraq War the role of veterans and their families Drawing on extensive participant observation and interviews Lisa Leitz demonstrates how the harrowing war experiences of veterans and their families motivated a significant number of them to engage in peace activism Married to a Navy pilot herself Leitz documents how military peace activists created a movement that allowed them to merge two seemingly contradictory sides of their lives an intimate relation to the military and antiwar activism Members of the movement strategically deployed their combined military peace activist identities to attract media attention assert their authority about the military and war and challenge dominant pro war sentiment By emphasizing the human costs of war activists hoped to mobilize American citizens and leaders who were detached from the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan bring the wars to an end and build up programs to take care of returning veterans and their families The stories in Fighting for Peace ultimately reveal that America's all volunteer force is contributing to a civilian military divide that leaves civilians with little connection to the sacrifices of the military Increasingly Leitz shows veterans and their families are being left to not only fight America's wars but also to fight against them

Leverage of the Weak Hwa-Jen Liu, 2015-07-21 Comparing Taiwan and South Korea strategically Hwa Jen Liu seeks an answer to a deceptively simple question Why do social movements appear at different times in a nation's development. Despite their apparent resemblance, a colonial heritage, authoritarian rule, rapid industrialization, and structural similarities: Taiwan and South Korea were opposites in their experiences with two key social movements. South Korea followed a conventional capitalist route; labor movements challenged the system long before environmental movements did. In Taiwan, pro-environment struggles gained strength before labor activism. Liu argues that part of the explanation lies in an analysis of how movements advance their causes by utilizing different types of power. Whereas labor movements have the power of economic leverage, environmental movements depend on the power of ideology. Therefore, examining material factors versus ideational factors is crucial to understanding the successes or failures of social movements. Leverage of the Weak is a significant contribution to the literature on social movements, to the study of East Asian political economies, and to the progress of the comparative historical method. It enhances knowledge of movement emergence, investigates the possibilities and obstacles involved in forging labor-environment alliances, and offers the first systematic multilayered comparisons across movements and nations in East Asia.

Civic Labors Dennis A. Deslippe, Eric Fure-Slocum, John W. McKerley, 2016-10-17 Labor studies scholars and working class historians have long worked at the crossroads of academia and activism. The essays in this collection examine the challenges and opportunities for engaged scholarship in the United States and abroad. A diverse roster of contributors discuss how participation in current labor and social struggles guides their campus and community organizing, public history initiatives, teaching, mentoring, and other activities. They also explore the role of research and scholarship in social change while acknowledging that intellectual labor complements but never replaces collective action and movement building.
