The Evolution of Complex Hunter-Gatherers Ben Fitzhugh, 2012-12-06 In 1987 I had the good fortune to join in the excavation of a phenomenal archaeological site on the western coast of Kodiak Island in Alaska The New Karluk site aka Karluk One was perched on the edge of the small village of Karluk at the mouth of the river of the same name once one of the most productive salmon rivers in the North Pacific I had just completed my sophomore year of college and under the direction of Richard Jordan I enthusiastically joined several other students in the Kodiak Archaeology Projects New Karluk excavation I had participated in my father's archaeological research in Eastern Canada since early childhood but the Karluk dig was unlike any archaeology I had experienced before For three months we peeled back layers of grass wood and earth floors separated by remnants of ancient sod roofs Due to the unusual preservation and richness of the site at every tum we uncovered perishable items such as bent wood bowls masks dolls puffin beak rattles grass baskets fragments of fiber netting locks of hair and food waste Preservation was so excellent in fact that we often exposed grass blades still green after hundreds of years which once exposed to air would tum brown before our eyes NEH Exhibitions Today National Endowment for the Humanities.
