The Frontier Mission and Social Transformation in Western Honduras Nancy Johnson Black, 2016-05-18 The Frontier Mission and Social Transformation in Western Honduras deals with the interaction between Mercedarian missionaries and the indigenous Lenca Indian population of western Honduras during the early sixteenth to mid eighteenth centuries Using an anthropological perspective it relies heavily on previously neglected ecclesiastical archival material in conjunction with preliminary archaeological evidence as an integral source of data A fine grained description of the local processes of missionization in a frontier region examines the organization operation and goals of the Mercedarian mission province located in the colonial Audiencia of Guatemala Summary data concerning aspects of Lenca society and physical environment relevant to investigation of mission activities are provided The importance of this study lies in its ability to explain mission development in frontier settings as well as to trace transformations within a mission order over almost a 250 year period

A Time for Mission Samuel Escobar, 2013-07-14 Christian mission in the twenty first century has become the responsibility of a global church The heart of mission is the drive to cross geographical cultural and social barriers in order to share the good news of Jesus Christ with all peoples Drawing on his involvement in missionary work over many years Samuel Escobar explores how the church spreads the Christian faith God s Word forms the foundation for his reflections while he uses insights from theological and historical studies as well as from the social sciences to gain a clearer understanding of the church s missionary calling His stimulating and challenging analysis contributes significantly to a global evangelical dialogue on mission today and in the future
