Nationalism In Uzbekistan James Critchlow, 2018-03-09 Drawing from a wide range of Uzbek and Russian sources James Critchlow analyzes significant developments leading up to Uzbekistan's declaration of sovereignty and examines the outlook for the republic's emergence as an independent international player The author's primary focus is on the Uzbek elites attitudes and their efforts to throw off Moscow's hegemony by using popular grievances to mobilize mass support against the central Soviet government Critchlow traces local grievances to two roots The first is Uzbekistan's decades long economic exploitation by Moscow through the imposition of an intensive cotton monoculture the accumulated effects of which have been massive environmental degradation illness and death The second is the central government's failure to adequately compensate Uzbekistan for these hardships and for the republic's overall contribution to the Soviet economy while having further impoverished Uzbeks by limiting the range of their cultural and political expression Among the manifestations of Uzbek resistance explored here are protests against russification and compulsory military conscription persistent and open adherence to religious traditions and loyalty above all to local political ethnic and family ties which frequently has led Moscow to charge the republic's leadership with nepotism and corruption Now that their campaign for sovereignty has triumphed will Uzbek leaders be able to solve the knotty political and economic problems their republic still faces The analysis offered here illuminates this question and suggests possible answers changes occurred as a result of the revolution in 1917 the incorporation of the region into the Soviet Union and gaining independence after the collapse of the USSR Impartial and informed public evaluation of the Soviet and post Soviet periods has always been a complicated issue and the official descriptions have often contradicted the interpretations of the past viewed through the experiences of ordinary people Identity and Memory in Post Soviet Central Asia looks at the tradition of history construction in Central Asia By collecting views of the public s experiences of the Soviet past in Uzbekistan the author examines the transformation of present day Central Asia from the perspective of these personal memories and analyses how they relate to the Soviet and post Soviet official descriptions of Soviet life The book discusses that the way in which people in Central Asia reconcile their Soviet past to a great extent refers to the three fold process of recollecting their everyday experiences reflecting on their past from the perspective of their post Soviet present and re imagining These three elements influence memories and lead to selectivity in memory construction emphasising the aspects of the Soviet era people choose to recall in positive and negative lights Presenting a broader picture of Soviet everyday life at the periphery of the USSR the book will be a useful contribution for students and scholars of Central Asian Studies Ethnicity and Identity Politics

State Erosion Lawrence P. Markowitz, 2013-11-15 State failure is a central challenge to international peace and security in the post Cold War era Yet theorizing on the causes of state failure remains surprisingly limited In State Erosion Lawrence P Markowitz draws on his extensive fieldwork in two Central Asian republics Tajikistan where state institutions fragmented into a five year civil war from 1992 through 1997 and Uzbekistan which constructed one of the largest state security apparatuses in post Soviet Eurasia to advance a theory of state failure focused on unlootable resources rent seeking and unruly elites In Tajikistan Uzbekistan and other countries with low capital mobility where resources cannot be extracted concealed or transported to market without state intervention local elites may control resources but they depend on patrons to convert their resources into rents Markowitz argues that different rent seeking opportunities either promote the cooptation of local elites to the regime or incite competition over rents which in turn lead to either cohesion or fragmentation Markowitz distinguishes between weak states and failed states challenges the assumption that state failure in a country begins at the center and radiates outward and expands the resource curse argument to include cash crop economies where mechanisms of state failure differ from those involved in fossil fuels and minerals Broadening his argument to weak states in the Middle East Syria and Lebanon and Africa Zimbabwe and Somalia Markowitz shows how the distinct patterns of state failure in weak states with immobile capital can inform our understanding of regime change ethnic violence and security sector reform
