Moore,2019-02-07 Early American libraries stood at the nexus of two transatlantic branches of commerce the book trade and the slave trade Slavery and the Making of Early American Libraries bridges the study of these trades by demonstrating how Americans profits from slavery were reinvested in imported British books and providing evidence that the colonial book market was shaped in part by the demand of slave owners for metropolitan cultural capital Drawing on recent scholarship that shows how participation in London cultural life was very expensive in the eighteenth century as well as evidence that enslavers were therefore some of the few early Americans who could afford to import British cultural products the volume merges the fields of the history of the book Atlantic studies and the study of race arguing that the empire wide circulation of British books was underwritten by the labour of the African diaspora The volume is the first in early American and eighteenth century British studies to fuse our growing understanding of the material culture of the transatlantic text with our awareness of slavery as an economic and philanthropic basis for the production and consumption of knowledge In studying the American dissemination of works of British literature and political thought it claims that Americans were seeking out the forms of citizenship constitutional traditions and rights that were the signature of that British identity Even though they were purchasing the sovereignty of Anglo Americans at the expense of African Americans through these books however some colonials were also making the case for the abolition of slavery

Portrait of a Woman in Silk Zara Anishanslin,2016-09-20 Through the story of a portrait of a woman in a silk dress historian Zara Anishanslin embarks on a fascinating journey exploring and refining debates about the cultural history of the eighteenth century British Atlantic world While most scholarship on commodities focuses either on labor and production or on consumption and use Anishanslin unifies both examining the worlds of four identifiable people who produced wore and represented this object a London weaver one of early modern Britain s few women silk designers a Philadelphia merchant s wife and a New England painter Blending macro and micro history with nuanced gender analysis Anishanslin shows how making buying and using goods in the British Atlantic created an object based community that tied its inhabitants together while also allowing for different views of the Empire Investigating a range of subjects including self fashioning identity natural history politics and trade Anishanslin makes major contributions both to the study of material culture and to our ongoing conversation about how to write history
