Rice Research in Asia Robert Eugene Evenson, Robert W. Herdt, Mahabub Hossain, 1996 In order to achieve economic efficiency research organizations have established rigorous quantitative methods for priority setting One such organization the Rockefeller Foundation has drawn on this report to help determine the research goals it should emphasize in its funding A review of the problem of priority setting is presented followed by a discussion of approaches that have been used previously Several chapters demonstrate how a number of areas of plant science research have contributed to gains in rice productivity and also assess the current challenges of genetic improvement and pest control The economic framework for priority setting and previous methods are reviewed followed by a series of country case studies which provide more practical applications

The Rice Economy of Asia Randolph Barker, 2014-04-04 To millions of people in the world rice is the center of existence especially in Asia where more than 90 percent of the world s rice is grown This book is about the trends and changes that have occurred in the Asian rice economy since World War II but particularly since the introduction of new varieties of rice and modern technology in the mid 1960s Although there is now a vast amount of literature and statistical data on various aspects of the subject no single comprehensive treatment has previously been prepared The Rice Economy of Asia not only provides such a treatment but also presents a clear picture of some of the critical issues dealing with productivity and equity as a glance at the table of contents will show In addition to 18 chapters there are an extensive bibliography 150 tables and 50 charts The volume as a whole should be interesting and useful to decisionmakers at national and international levels to professionals and to students of development Rice Research in Asia R. significantly lower growth in agricultural productivity      Southeast Asia: A Ten Nation Region Ashok K. Dutt, 2012-12-06

This book introduces the ten nation region of Southeast Asia. The main themes of the book are diversity, differential development and changing socio-economic and political setting affecting these characteristics in the 1990s. The nations of Southeast Asia have different languages, three dominant religions: Buddhism, Islam, and Christianity, varied levels of economic development that range from bare agricultural subsistence to highly urbanized and highly developed. The historically based core areas of these countries have evolved on their own. Moreover, the effects of Indian, Chinese, Islamic, and Western cultures have been experienced differently in different nations at different times in their histories. This book is intended to be understood by all those who want an initial introduction to Southeast Asia. As many aspects of the book are the result of an in-depth research carried out by the contributing authors, it is also a valuable reference. The contributing authors have portrayed the basic spatial aspects of the region as well as their relevance in the 1990s based in novel ways and through original interpretations. All first and some second authors of chapters are professors. All but one have Ph.Ds. Most contributing authors are geographers but with different sub-specialties.
