Rice Tropical Agriculture Series:

Rice Donald Honey Grist,1968 International symposium on technology for double cropping of rice in the tropics Tropical Agriculture Research Center,1987 国際米作技術シンポジウム (Japan),1900 Tropical Agriculture ,1924 Environmental Biotechnology Volume 4 K. M. Gothandam,Ramachandran Srinivasan,Shivendu Ranjan,Nandita Dasgupta,Eric Lichtfouse,2021-09-24 This book reviews the production of bioplastic from various raw materials and recycling wastewater into useful bioproducts by bacteria In addition it also addresses the recent advancement in pest control in rice plants different methods to analyse genotoxicity on soil samples and the effect of phytocompounds on acrylamide induced toxicity in Drosophilla Interestingly this book also discusses mesoporous silica nanoparticles role as nanocarrier material for inhibiting the cancer cell especially breast cancer and various biotechnological applications of marine fungal exopolysaccharides Biological Nitrogen Fixation for Sustainable Agriculture J.K. Ladha,T. George,C. Bohlool,2013-03-09 Chemical fertilizers have had a significant impact on food production in the recent past and are today an indispensable part of modern agriculture On the other hand the oil crisis of the 1970s and the current Middle East problems are constant reminders of the vulnerability of our fossil fuel dependent agriculture There are vast areas of the developing world where N fertilizers are neither available nor affordable and in most of these countries balance of payment problems have resulted in the removal of N fertilizer subsidies The external costs of environmental degradation and human health far exceed economic concerns Input efficiency of N fertilizer is one of the lowest and in turn contributes substantially to environmental pollution Nitrate in ground and surface waters and the threat to the stability of the ozone layer from gaseous oxides of nitrogen are major health and environmental concerns The removal of large quantities of crop produce from the land also depletes soil of its native N reserves Another concern is the decline in crop yields under continuous use of N fertilizers These economic environmental and production considerations dictate that biological alternatives which can augment and in some cases replace N fertilizers must be exploited Long term sustainability of agricultural systems must rely on the use and effective management of internal resources The process of biological nitrogen fixation offers and economically attractive and ecologically sound means of reducing external nitrogen input and improving the quality and quantity of internal resources In this book we outline sustainability issues that dictate an increased use of biological nitrogen fixation and the constraints on its optimal use in agriculture Environmental Management In Tropical Agriculture Robert Goodland,2019-03-04 Addressing the problem of the high cost of agricultural development in tropical regions this book summarizes the environmental concerns associated with tropical agriculture The authors highlight major environmental hazards confronted in tropical agriculture and suggest specific management options that could be used to reduce or avoid them The fi The Cambridge History of China: Volume 5, Sung China, 960-1279 AD, Part 2 John W. Chaffee,Denis Twitchett,2015-03-05 This is the second of two volumes on the Sung Dynasty which together provide a comprehensive history of China from the fall of the Tang Dynasty in 907 to the Mongol conquest of the Southern Song in 1279. With contributions from leading historians in the field, Volume 5, Part Two paints a complex portrait of a dynasty beset by problems and contradictions but one which despite its military and geopolitical weakness was nevertheless economically powerful, culturally brilliant, socially fluid, and the most populous of any empire in global history to that point. In this much anticipated addition to the series, the authors survey key themes across ten chapters including government, economy, society, religion, and thought to provide an authoritative and topical treatment of a profound and significant period in Chinese history. Asia, 1927. International Rice Research Notes Vol 17 No 6, Planthoppers Kong Luen Heong, B. Hardy, 2009.

Management of Biological Nitrogen Fixation for the Development of More Productive and Sustainable Agricultural Systems Ladha, 2013-03-09. Table 1: Global allocation of arable land between different commodities. Globally, cereal cropping dominates cultivated land. Commodities: Proportion of land area use around 50% of total area. Table 1: The remaining % of arable land is used for production of oilseed, fibre, or food and cash crops. In addition, vast areas are maintained under temporary or permanent pasture for wheat forage production, 2-3 fold greater than the total area. Rice, 10% under cultivation and permanent crop. Table 1: Fig. Maize, 9-1%. All cultivated crops except for legumes/pulses. All other cereals, 13%, and legume oil seeds require the soil to provide relatively large amounts of nitrogen (N). It is necessary for the three most important cereals: wheat (Triticum aestivum), rice (Oryza sativa), and maize (Zea mays). Legume pulses, 5% to take up 20 to 40 kg soil N/ha over a period of 3-5 months to satisfy the N requirements of the seed and supporting vegetative structure for each tonne of total grain produced, e.g., Fig. 2. Myers, 1988. Productive pastures on the other hand may assimilate 100 kg N/ha each annum, of which 50 to 90% will be consumed by livestock in intensively grazed systems. Beverages, Tobacco, 7%. Ledgard, 1991; Thomas, 1995. Tropical Agriculture Earley, Vernon Wilcox, 1916. Bulletin Geographical Society of Philadelphia, 1919. Bulletin of the Geographical Society of Philadelphia Geographical Society of Philadelphia, 1918. List of members in v. 7. Cambridge University Agricultural Society Magazine, 1924. Il Riso, 1974. Proceedings of the 8th International Symposium on Insect-Plant Relationships Steph B.J. Menken, J.H. Visser, Paul Harrewijn, 2012-12-06. The papers in this book are organized as follows: insect-plant communities, host plant selection, genetics and evolution, host plant resistance and application of transgenic plants and multitrophic interactions. Besides seven invited papers and a paper with concluding remarks, this volume also contains the short communications of all 115 oral presentations and posters. Included too are the summaries of four European Science Foundation workshops held over the past two years where European scientists discussed the state of the art and the future of major topics in insect-plant interactions in order to develop better integrated research programs. The field of insect-plant interactions nowadays includes almost all of biology as well as parts of chemistry and physics. It takes a central position in biology because insects are the most abundant animal group; half of them are herbivores and they dominate all terrestrial ecosystems Knowledge of insect plant interactions is thus fundamental to an understanding of the evolution of life on Earth Two major topics of worldwide concern give this field an extra dimension First large amounts of food crops are still lost due to insect pests With the increasing concern for environmental pollution and the subsequent plans to drastically reduce pesticides integrated pest management and development of resistant crops become a major focus in agriculture The importance of the study of insect plant relationships is thus continuously augmented Clearly successful pest control demands sufficient fundamental knowledge of pest host interactions Second such work can contribute towards stopping or even counterbalancing the threatening biodiversity crisis thanks to an understanding of how the interaction of insects and plants has influenced and still influences the diversification and speciation evolution of both groups These problems should of course be approached at a multitrophic level

Economic Botany G.E. Wickens, 2012-12-06 The strength of this book is that it is written by someone who has spent a lifetime devoted to the science of economic botany The author has brought together his vast experience in the field in Africa with his studies of arid land plants at the Royal Botanic Gardens Kew The result is an informative and reliable text that covers a vast range of topics It is also firmly based upon the author's research and interest in plant taxonomy and therefore fully acknowledges the importance of correct naming and classification in the field of science of economic botany The coverage is of economic botany in its broadest sense I was delighted to find such topics as ecophysiology plant breeding the environment and conservation are included in the text This gives the book a much more comprehensive coverage than most other texts on the subject I was also glad to see that the book covers the use of various organisms that are no longer considered part of the plant kingdom such as various species of fungi and algae It is indeed a broad ranging book that will be of use to many people interested in the uses of plants and fungi Economic botany is once again being given more prominence as a discipline because of its enormous relevance to both conservation and sustainable development Those people involved in those topics should find this a most useful resource
