Rocky Shores Exploitation In Chile And South Africa Ecological Studies:

Rocky Shores: Exploitation in Chile and South Africa W. Roy Siegfried, 2013-03-07 It seems almost trite to introduce this book by saying that man has been exploiting the intertidal zone for food for a long time Just how long nobody knows for sure but the prehistoric inhabitants of Terra Amata on the Mediterranean coast near Nice ate marine intertidal animals at least 300 000 years ago Similar impressive evidence going back to at least 100000 years exists for prehistoric man s consumption of intertidal animals along the South African coast However early man s dependence on intertidal resources probably goes back much further in time During the last 2 million or so years temperate Eurasia experienced some 20 glaciations interspersed by warm equable periods Different modes of life were open to man in colonizing the northern temperate zone One was to become a big game hunter specializing for example on mammoths the other to exploit marine intertidal resources Of the two probably the shoreline offered an easier environment for an original scavenging food gatherer

High-Latitude Rainforests and Associated Ecosystems of the West Coast of the Americas Richard G. Lawford, 1996 Regional intercomparisons between ecosystems on different continents can be a powerful tool to better understand the ways in which ecosystems respond to global change Large areas are often needed to characterize the causal mechanisms governing interactions between ecozones and their environments Factors such as weather and climate patterns land ocean and land atmosphere interactions all play important roles As a result of the strong physical north south symmetry between the western coasts of North and South America the similarities in climate coastal oceanography and physiography between these two regions have been extensively documented High Latitude Rain Forests and Associated Ecosystems of the West Coast of the Americas presents current research on West Coast forest and river ecology and compares ecosystems of the Pacific Northwest with those of South America

Food Webs and the Dynamics of Marine Reefs Tim McClanahan, George Branch, 2008-04-16 Biologists have made significant advances in our understanding of the Earth s shallow subtidal marine ecosystems but the findings on these disparate regions have never before been documented and gathered in a single volume Now in Food Webs and the Dynamics of Marine Reefs Tim R McClanahan and George M Branch fill this lacuna with a comparative and comprehensive collection of nine essays written by experts on specific aquatic regions Each essay focuses on the food webs of a respective ecosystem and the factors affecting these communities from the intense and direct pressure of human influence on fisheries to the multi vector contributors to climate change The book covers nine shallow water marine ecosystems from selected areas throughout the world four coral reef systems three hard bottom systems and two kelp systems In summarizing their organization human influence on them and recent developments in these ecosystems the authors contribute to our understanding of their ecological organization and management Food Webs and the Dynamics of Marine Reefs will be a useful tool for all benthic marine investigators providing an expert comparative view of these aquatic regions
