mathematical activity The Learner s Perspective Study aims to juxtapose the observable practices of the classroom and the meanings attributed to those practices by classroom participants The LPS research design documents sequences of at least ten lessons using three video cameras supplemented by the reconstructive accounts of classroom participants obtained in post lesson video stimulated interviews and by test and questionnaire data and copies of student written material In each participating country data generation focuses on the classrooms of three teachers identified by the local mathematics education community as competent and situated in demographically different school communities within the one major city The large body of complex data supports both the characterisation of practice in the classrooms of competent teachers and the development of theory

Common Formative Assessments 2.0 Larry Ainsworth, Donald Viegut, 2014-11-14 Assessments that improve the speed and quality of learning fully updated for teacher teams In this expanded all new edition author Larry Ainsworth provides a system of intentionally aligned components standards instruction assessments and data analysis that all work together to improve student learning Readers will learn to Build the highway to aligned assessments Decide the learning intentions and student success criteria for a unit of study Evaluate and revise assessment questions for quality Plan the learning progressions for students to attain the learning intentions Create quick progress checks to coincide with the learning progressions Use assessment results as feedback to adjust instruction and student learning strategies Upgrade your CFAs using CFA 2.0 CFA 2.0 is so much more than assessment design It shows teachers how they can intentionally align standards instruction assessment and data analysis in every unit of study Transparency in Assessment - Exploring the Influence of Explicit Assessment Criteria Anders Jönsson, Frans Prins, 2019-04-03 In many schools and higher education institutions it has become common practice to share assessment criteria with students Sometimes it is required for accountability purposes at other times criteria are used as a means to communicate expectations to students However the idea that explicit assessment criteria should be shared with students has been contested On the one hand research has shown that explicit criteria may positively affect student performance reduce their anxiety as well as support students use of self regulated learning strategies On the other hand there are fears that explicit criteria may have a restraining influence on students learning as well as limiting their autonomy and creativity There are also indications of students becoming more performance oriented as opposed to learning oriented when being provided with explicit assessment criteria Taken together it is not fully understood under which circumstances it is productive for student learning to share explicit assessment criteria and under which circumstances it is not In particular empirical research on the proposed negative effects of sharing criteria with learners is limited and most fears voiced in the literature are based on individual experiences and anecdotal evidence In this book we therefore bring different perspectives on transparency in assessment together in order to further our understanding of how students are influenced by the use of explicit assessment criteria A deeper understanding of the influence of explicit assessment criteria on students understanding of criteria motivation and learning is equally imperative for future research and educational practice both of which need to go beyond individual opinions and convictions
