Development Carl Mosk, 2007-11-26 This book presents three distinct approaches to understanding how and why Japan made the transition from a relatively low income country mainly focused on agriculture to a high income nation centered on manufacturing and services Making a case for over determination in economic behaviour the authors argue that individual firm level and governmental behavior is simultaneously determined by the interaction of markets norms and structures and that change over time is rarely if ever limited to the economy operating in isolation from social norms and structures

An East Asian Route of Industrialization? The Case of Japan, 1868-1937 Peer Vries, 2022-08-01 In this book Peer Vries is the first scholar to provide an extensive test of the claim that industrialization in East Asia in particular in Japan between the Meiji Restoration and World War Two would have been much more labour intensive than industrialization in the West He does this by systematically comparing the role and importance of labour and capital in Japan and in a number of Western countries at a similar stage of their industrial development He uses macro economic data as well as specific observations by people at the time It turns out that there is no reason to distinguish a specific labour intensive Japanese route of industrialization His comparative analysis provides us with a better understanding of the logic of industrialization in both West and East
