Region as a Socio-environmental System D. Nir,2012-12-06 2 society would be a free anarchic society an without archos ruler a society in which each individual is responsible for the relationship between himself and the society By inner persuasion we must live by making the maximum contri bution of our physical and mental assets combined with minimal charge against and exploitation of the society We must contribute to society as much as possible because directly and indirectly we enjoy the contributions of the global society in which we live and of which we are a part To achieve this goal we must know not only ourselves but also the society in which we live A society is not uniform It is composed of mosaics of people of varying characteristics structured in different patterns and groups the qUalities of which we must know because upon them depends our own place in the society Were the world uniform of feature and society there would no place for regional geography But because the world varies in form and its societies are different study of the differentiation of the world s surface and the regional geography as the people who live on it is an important tool for understanding the society in which we live particularly when our goal is to live with it in harmony

Ecopolis Paul F. Downton, 2008-11-19 From 2008 for the first time in human history half of the world's population now live in cities Yet despite a wealth of literature on green architecture and planning there is to date no single book which draws together theory from the full range of disciplines from architecture planning and ecology which we must come to grips with if we are to design future cities which are genuinely sustainable Paul Downton's Ecopolis takes a major step along this path It highlights the urgent need to understand the role of cities as both agents of change and means of survival at a time when climate change has finally grabbed world attention and it provides a framework for designing cities that integrates knowledge both academic and practical from a range of relevant disciplines Identifying key theorists practitioners places and philosophies the book provides a solid theoretical context which introduces the concept of urban fractals and goes on to present a series of design and planning tools for achieving Sustainable Human Ecological Development SHED Combining knowledge from diverse fields to present a synthesis of urban ecology the book will provide a valuable resource for students researchers and practitioners in architecture construction planning geography and the traditional life sciences

Regions J. Nicholas Entrikin, 2017-05-15 This volume gathers a collection of the most seminal essays written by leading experts in the field which identify or signal many of the changing directions of regional research in geography during the past fifty years Various forms of new regionalism or new regional geography have emerged over the last several decades especially in political and economic geography but in general the region has been a concept in declining use Despite this the region has gained new currency in sub areas of political and economic geography and a so called new regionalism has emerged in studies of the changing nature of the nation state in a globalizing economy Taken together the essays in this volume provide the reader with a comprehensive overview of academic developments in this area of geographical research
