A European Strategy for Jobs and Growth Great Britain: Parliament: House of Lords: European Union Committee,2006-03-16 This report by the European Union Committee examines the progress of the European Union in initiating a strategy for jobs and growth across the Community as a whole The background to this report stems from the Spring European Council meeting in 2000 in Lisbon and the launch of an economic reform agenda The Committee observes that since the Lisbon Agenda little progress has been made and the performance of many of the larger European economies has been poor The Committee has noted that certain worrying signs of protectionist behaviour have developed especially regarding barriers of cross border mergers The EU has recognized this weak performance and the Agenda was relaunched in 2005 with a greater focus on the key economic priorities of more growth and jobs Also all Member States are now required to produce an annual National Action Plan highlighting the policies being pursued to improve economic growth and increase employment The Committee sets out a number of recommendations to further push forward the priorities of growth and jobs including that the Commission should seek to complete the progress towards an internal market that Member States should influence one another in the development of good practice through statistical comparison of their economic progress and agree on quantifiable targets that the format of the National Action Plans should include not only the successes but where countries are underperforming that the Agenda be given a higher public profile

Can the Celtic Tiger Cross the Irish Border? John Bradley,J. Esmond Birnie,2001 One of the Republic's outstanding economists John Bradley and the prominent Unionist politician and economist Esmond Birnie debate to what extent Northern Ireland can learn from the phenomenon of the Celtic Tiger Professor Bradley asks what lessons the North can take from the success of the Republic's economic planning and whether it makes sense for the island to trade and seek investment as one unit in a globalized economy Dr Birnie wonders whether the low level of trade and economic interchange between the two Irish economies is really abnormal in European terms and whether a successfully coordinated island economy is possible in two separate political jurisdictions systems were mainly designed and institutionalized in predominantly industrial economies characterized by relatively standardized employment relationships and stable career patterns as well as plentiful employment opportunities even for those with low skills Over the past two to three decades they have faced the challenge of an accelerating shift to a primarily service based economy accompanied by demands for greater flexibility in wages and terms and conditions in low skill segments of the labour market as well as pressures to maximise labour force participation given the more limited potential for productivity led growth The book develops an original framework for analysing adaptive reform in unemployment protection along three discrete dimensions of institutional change which are termed benefit homogenization risk re categorization and activation This framework is then used to structure analysis of twenty years of unemployment protection reform in twelve European countries In addition to mapping reforms along these dimensions the country studies analyse the political and institutional factors that have shaped national patterns of adaptation Complementary comparative analyses explore the effects of benefit reforms on the operation of the labour market assess evolving patterns of working age benefit dependency and examine the changing role of active labour market policies in the regulation of the risk of unemployment
