Religion And Peacebuilding:

The Role of Religion in Peacebuilding Pauline Kollontai, Sue Yore, Sebastian Kim, 2017-12-14 The question who is my neighbour challenges the way we see ourselves as well as the way we see others Especially in situations where we feel conflicted between our own self identity and common identity within a wider society Historically religion has contributed to this inner conflict by creating us versus them mentalities Challenging this traditional view this volume examines how religions and religious communities can use their resources methodology and praxis to encourage peace making The book is divided into two parts the first includes sources theories and methodologies of crossing boundaries of prejudice and distrust from the perspectives of theology and religious studies The second includes case studies of theory and practice to challenge prejudice and distrust in a conflict or post conflict situation The chapters are written by scholars religious leaders and faith motivated peace practitioners from various global contexts to create a diverse academic study of religious peace building

Making Peace with Faith Michelle Garred, Mohammed Abu-Nimer, 2018 Although religion is almost never a root cause it often gets pulled into conflict as a powerful element especially where conflicting parties have different religious identities Every faith tradition offers resources for peace and secular policy makers are more and more acknowledging the influence of faith based actors even though there remains a tendency to associate religion more with conflict than peace In this text practitioners from different faiths relate and explore the many challenges they face in their peacebuilding work which their secular partners may be unaware of The contributors are all practitioners whose faith or religious experience motivates their work for peace and justice in such a way that it influences their actions Their roles are diverse as some work for faith based institutions while others engage in secular contexts The multiple perspectives featured represent multiple faiths Muslim Christian Hindu Buddhist Jewish diverse scopes of practice different geographic regions Each chapter follows a similar template to address specific challenges such as dealing with extremist views addressing negative stereotypes about one's faith endorsing violence developing relations with other faith based or secular groups confronting gender based violence and working with people who hold different beliefs In this text practitioners from different faiths relate and explore the many challenges they face in their peacebuilding work which their secular partners may be unaware of They provide a comprehensive view of the practice of peacebuilding in its many challenging aspects for both professionals and those studying religion and peacebuilding alike Each chapter follows a similar template to address specific challenges such as dealing with extremist views addressing negative stereotypes about one's faith endorsing violence developing relations with other faith based or secular groups confronting gender based violence and working with people who hold different beliefs In this text practitioners from different faiths relate and explore the many challenges they face in their peacebuilding work which their secular partners may be unaware of They provide a comprehensive view of the practice of peacebuilding in its many challenging aspects for both professionals and those studying religion and peacebuilding alike Each chapter

Decolonizing Religion and Peacebuilding Atalia Omer, 2020-08-18 An investigation of what consolidating religion as a technology of peacebuilding and development does to people's accounts of their religious and cultural traditions and why interreligious peacebuilding entrenches colonial legacies in the present Throughout the global south local and international organizations are frequent participants in peacebuilding projects that focus on interreligious dialogue Yet as Atalia Omer argues in Decolonizing Religion and Peacebuilding the effects of their efforts are often perverse reinforcing neocolonial practices and disempowering local religious actors Based on empirical research of inter and intra religious peacebuilding practices in Kenya and the Philippines Omer identifies two paradoxical findings first religious peacebuilding practices are both empowering and depoliticizing and second more doing of religion does not necessarily denote deeper or more critical religious literacy Further she shows that these religious actors generate decolonial openings regardless of how closed or open their religious communities are Hence religion s occasional usefulness in peacebuilding does not necessarily mean justice oriented outcomes The book not only uses decolonial and intersectional prisms to expose the entrenched and ongoing colonial dynamics operative in religion and the practices of peacebuilding and development in the global South but it also speaks to decolonial theory through stories of transformation and survival

Evaluating Interreligious Peacebuilding and Dialogue Mohammed Abu-Nimer, Renáta Katalin Nelson, 2021-09-20 In the emerging fields of religious and interreligious peacebuilding the question of monitoring and evaluation is a challenging yet necessary process The need to develop comprehensive yet fitting evaluation models for religious and interreligious peacebuilding is not only important for donor interests but also critical as a means of documenting and learning for peacebuilders themselves Theories and best practices in monitoring and evaluation have become prevalent in many fields yet the amount of literature on evaluating intercultural and especially religious and interreligious projects remains scant in comparison This volume offers a unique contribution that not only looks at several of the challenges and implications faced by religious and interreligious peacebuilders but also provides concrete examples of new models and tools for monitoring and evaluating religious and interreligious peacebuilding projects In doing so this volume serves as a tool and point of reference for individuals and organizations developing and implementing interreligious dialogue and peacebuilding projects

Schwarz, 2018-03-23 How do faith based organizations influence the work of transnational peacebuilding development and human rights advocacy How is the political role of such organizations informed by their religious ideas and practices This book investigates this set of questions by examining how three transnational faith based organizations Religions for Peace the Taiz Community and International Justice Mission conceptualize their own religious practices values and identities and how those acts and ideas inform their political goals and strategies The book demonstrates the political importance of prayer in the work of transnational faith based organizations specifically in areas of conflict resolution post conflict integration agenda setting and in constituting narratives about justice and reconciliation It also evaluates the distinctive strategies that faith based organizations employ to navigate religious difference A central goal of the book is to propose a new way to study religion in international politics by actively questioning and reflecting on what it means for an act idea or community to be religious

The Role of Religion in Peacebuilding and Conflict Transformation Annemarie Schlack, 2009 Until recently religion tended to be either neglected in research in international affairs or perceived as cause or pretext for conflict This monograph discusses the beneficial potential of the factor religion that should be considered in international relations as well as at the local level An analysis of literature and interviews with individuals engaged in interfaith activities in the UK have produced first hand insight into the agendas of the different players in interfaith activities and into the functions of interfaith organisations These organisations contribute in several ways to the common goal of a more tolerant and less violent society and add value to community regeneration and the neighbourhood renewal programs The analysis should be especially useful to professionals in the field of peacebuilding and conflict prevention Peace, Politics, and Religion Jeffrey Haynes, 2020 Relationships between peace politics and religion are often controversial and sometimes problematic Religion is a core source of identity for billions of people around the world and it is hardly surprising that sometimes it becomes involved in conflicts At the same time we can see religion involved not only in conflict It is also central to conflict resolution peace making and peacebuilding Religious involvement is often necessary to try to end hatred and differences frequently central to political conflicts especially but not only in the Global South Evidence shows that religious leaders and faith based organisations can play constructive roles in helping to end violence and in some cases build peace via early warnings of conflict good offices once conflict has erupted as well as advocacy mediation and reconciliation The chapters of this book highlight that religion can encourage both conflict and peace through the activities of people individually and collectively imbued with religious ideas and ideals The Wiley Blackwell Companion to Religion and Peace Jolyon Mitchell, Suzanna R.
