Decolonizing Indigenous Histories Maxine Oland, Siobhan M. Hart, Liam Frink, 2012-12-06 Decolonizing Indigenous Histories makes a vital contribution to the decolonization of archaeology by recasting colonialism within long term indigenous histories Showcasing case studies from Africa Australia Mesoamerica and North and South America this edited volume highlights the work of archaeologists who study indigenous peoples and histories at multiple scales The contributors explore how the inclusion of indigenous histories and collaboration with contemporary communities and scholars across the subfields of anthropology can reframe archaeologies of colonialism The cross cultural case studies employ a broad range of methodological strategies archaeology ethnohistory archival research oral histories and descendant perspectives to better appreciate processes of colonialism The authors argue that these more complicated histories of colonialism contribute not only to understandings of past contexts but also to contemporary social justice projects In each chapter authors move beyond an academic artifice of prehistoric and colonial and instead focus on longer sequences of indigenous histories to better understand colonial contexts Throughout each author explores and clarifies the complexities of indigenous daily practices that shape and are shaped by long term indigenous and local histories by employing an array of theoretical tools including theories of practice agency materiality and temporality Included are larger integrative chapters by Kent Lightfoot and Patricia Rubertone foremost North American colonialism scholars who argue that an expanded global perspective is essential to understanding processes of indigenous colonial interactions and transitions Looking at South African Art Frieda Harmsen,1985 South Africa 1985 Rone Heyns,South Africa.
