of late 20th century urbanism demonstrates a movement toward cultural differentiation. Such factors as ethnicity and religious and cultural heritages have led to the concept of hybridity as a shaper of identity. Challenging the common assumption that hybrid peoples create hybrid places and hybrid places house hybrid people, this book suggests that hybrid environments do not always accommodate pluralistic tendencies or multicultural practices. In contrast to the standard position that hybrid space results from the merger of two cultures, the book introduces the concept of a third place and argues for a more sophisticated understanding of the principal. In contributed chapters, the book provides case studies of the third place, enabling a comparative and transnational examination of the complexity of hybridity. The book is divided into two parts. Part one deals with pre 20th century examples of places that capture the intersection of modernity and hybridity. Part two considers equivalent sites in the late 20th century, demonstrating how hybridity has been a central feature of globalization.

Shoko-Ken: A Late Medieval Daime Sukiya Style Japanese Tea-House Robin Noel Walker, 2012-11-12. First published in 2003. Built in 1628 at the Koto in temple in the precincts of Daitoku ji monastery in Kyoto, the Shoko ken is a late medieval daime sukiya Japanese tea house. It is attributed to Hosokawa Tadaoki, also known as Hosokawa Sansai, an aristocrat and daimyo military leader and a disciple and friend of Sen no Rikyū. This work is an extremely thorough look at one of the few remaining tea houses of the Momoyama era, tea masters who studied with Sen no Rikyū. The English language sources on Hosokawa Sansai and his tea houses have been exhaustively researched. Many facts and minute observations have been brought together to give even the reader unfamiliar with Tea a sense of the presence which the tea house still manifests.

Leandro Valencia Locsin Jean-Claude Girard, 2021-12-06. The largely unknown oeuvre of the Philippine architect Leandro V Locsin (1928-1994) embodies the search for identity in the built environment. Having completed his studies, Locsin opened his practice in 1953 in the capital Manila, which after the aerial attacks by the Allied forces for the liberation of the Philippines from Japanese occupation had been almost completely destroyed. The reconstruction, as well as technical innovations and favorable political and economic conditions, made it possible for him to design a wide range and large number of projects, including hotels, commercial buildings, churches, cultural venues, and public buildings. His work combines inspiration from modernism with local traditions and comprises a total of 245 projects, of which more than half were completed. The book presents a selection of the most important buildings and projects.

Building in China Jeffrey W. Cody, 2021-01-15. Building in China is about striking an architectural balance between the pull of monumental tradition and the push of technological novelty. Centering on the dynamic period of post-imperial and pre-Communist China, the book focuses on the building and city planning initiatives of Henry Murphy a little known American architect who initially ventured to China in 1914 to design a campus for the Yale in China programme but who then found himself captivated by a professional and cultural challenge that lasted two decades how to preserve China's rich architectural traditions while also designing new buildings using up to date Western technologies Murphy's buildings were compromises wine in old bottles as he once called them and the book uses those tales as lenses through which to understand not only Murphy's quest to find a middle ground for his architecture in China but also to gaze at a tumultuous society facing an uncertain future Murphy's buildings were more than vessels for either aesthetic visions or technical expertise inadvertently they became political emblems as Chinese rulers such as Chiang Kai shek and Sun Yat sen's son called on Murphy for city planning advice to complement their hopes for urban reconstruction There are few serious studies of Western architects in the twentieth century who practiced in non Western contexts and those scant studies that have been published concentrate largely on British French or Dutch examples in colonial settings Hence the book makes significant contributions to the fields of both American and Chinese architectural history Architecture and the Landscape of Modernity in China before 1949 Edward Denison, 2017-02-17 This book explores China's encounter with architecture and modernity in the tumultuous epoch before Communism an encounter that was mediated not by a singular notion of modernism emanating from the west but that was uniquely multifarious deriving from a variety of sources both from the west and importantly from the east The heterogeneous origins of modernity in China are what make its experience distinctive and its architectural encounters exceptional These experiences are investigated through a re evaluation of established knowledge of the subject within the wider landscape of modern art practices in China The study draws on original archival and photographic material from different artistic genres and architecturally concentrates on China's engagement with the west through the treaty ports and leased territories the emergence of architecture as a profession in China and Japan's omnipresence not least in Manchuria which reached its apogee in the puppet state of Manchukuo The study's geographically temporally and architecturally inclusive approach framed by the concept of multiple modernities questions the application of conventional theories of modernity or post colonialism to the Chinese situation By challenging conventional modernist historiography that has marginalised the experiences of the west's other for much of the last century this book proposes different ways of grappling with and comprehending the distinction and complexity of China's experiences and its encounter with architectural modernity Constructing the Colonized Land Izumi Kuroishi, 2016-05-23 Despite the precipitous rise of East Asia as a center of architectural production since the Second World War informed studies remain lacking The lacuna is particularly conspicuous in terms of regional cross national studies documenting the close ties and parallels between China Taiwan Japan and Korea during this period Examining colonized cities in East Asia this book brings together a range of different perspectives across both space and time European Chinese Taiwanese Korean and Japanese discourses are examined with a range of complementary and conflicting views on the design of urban and architectural forms the political institutional religious and economical contexts of urban planning the role played by various media and the influence of various geographical social and anthropological research methods The diversity and plurality of these perspectives in this book provides an entwined architectural urban and social history of East Asia which offers insights into the cultural systems and the historical and spatial meanings of these colonized cities It concludes that the difficulties in the historical study of East Asia s colonial cities do not so much indicate cultural difference as the potentiality for multiple readings of the past toward the future Japanese Capitals in Historical Perspective Nicolas Fievez,Paul Waley,2013-11-05

Exporting American Architecture 1870-2000 Jeffrey W. Cody, 2005-06-27 The export of American architecture began in the nineteenth century as a disjointed set of personal adventures and commercial initiatives It continues today alongside the transfer of other aspects of American life and culture to most regions of the world Jeffrey Cody explains how why and where American architects planners building contractors and other actors have marketed American architecture overseas In so doing he provides a historical perspective on the diffusion of American building technologies architectural standards construction methods and planning paradigms Using previously undocumented examples and illustrations he shows how steel frame manufacturers shipped their products abroad enabling the erection of American style skyscrapers worldwide by 1900 and how this phase was followed by similar initiatives by companies manufacturing concrete components

Materials and Meaning in Contemporary Japanese Architecture Dana Buntrock, 2013-09-13 In this beautiful and perceptive book Dana Buntrock examines for the first time how tradition is incorporated into contemporary Japanese architecture Looking at the work of five architects Fumihiko Maki Terunobu Fujimori Ryoji Suzuki Kengo Kuma and Jun Aoki Buntrock reveals the aims influencing many wonderful works barely known in the West the sensual side of Japanese architecture borne out of approaches often less concerned with professionalism than with people and place The buildings described in this book illustrate an architecture that embraces uniqueness expressing unusual stories in the rough outlines of rammed earth and rust and demonstrating new paths opening up for architectural practice today For some these examples will offer new insight into expressions of tradition in Japanese architecture for others this book offers inspiration for their own efforts to assert the unique heritage of other regions around the world Compelling insightful and groundbreaking this book is essential for everyone studying Japanese architecture and anyone trying to invoke narrative and tradition in contemporary design
