Making Of The Museum Of Scotland:

The Making of the Museum of Scotland Charles McKean, 2000 Alongside visuals and photography Charles McKean here tells the architectural political logistical and emotional story of the new Museum of Scotland Spaces for Shaping the Nation Marina Beck, Christina Strunck, 2024-04-02 As spaces of knowledge the national museums and galleries of nineteenth century Europe played an important role both in the shaping of nation states and the education of their populations In this context such institutions sought to convey the history of the people for example by displaying pictorial cycles of important scenes from their history exhibiting objects associated with certain formative events or arraying period rooms to promote a specific impression of the past The contributions to this volume examine the purposes and educational strategies of national museums and national galleries via case studies from Denmark France Germany Great Britain Italy the Netherlands Poland Sweden and Switzerland Behind the Scenes at the Museum of Baked Beans Hunter Davies, 2010-07-01 I am fascinated by people turning their daft dreams into a reality How did they do it and why Driven by his own passion for collecting Hunter Davies has packed his notepad and set off in search of Britain's maddest museums As he explores these hidden gems he soon discovers that they are everywhere and that they celebrate just about everything from lawnmowers in Southport to pencils in Keswick But as Hunter travels up and down the country he comes to realise that it isn't only the collections that are fascinating it's also the people who have put them together Whether they're a man who loves his Heinz so much he's changed his name to Captain Beany or a kleptomaniac Vintage Radio buff these eccentric collectors are Britain's finest and could live in no other country in the world Once you discover these museums and get to know their curators Great Britain won't look quite the same again Scotland's History in the Making National Museums of Scotland, 1992 Unpacking the Collection Sarah Byrne, Anne Clarke, Rodney Harrison, Robin Torrence, 2011-06-27 Museum collections are often perceived as static entities hidden away in storerooms or trapped behind glass cases By focusing on the dynamic histories of museum collections new research reveals their pivotal role in shaping a wide range of social relations Over time and across space the interactions between these artefacts and the people and institutions who made, traded, collected, researched and exhibited them have generated complex networks of material and social agency In this innovative volume the contributors draw on a broad range of source materials to explore the cross-cultural interactions which have created museum collections These case studies contribute significantly to the development of new theoretical frameworks to examine broader questions of materiality, agency and identity in the past and present Grounded in case studies from individual objects and museum collections from North America, Europe, Africa, the Pacific Islands and Australia, this truly international volume juxtaposes historical, geographical and cross-cultural studies This work will be of great interest to archaeologists and anthropologists studying material culture as well as researchers in museum studies and cultural heritage management Natural History Dioramas - Traditional Exhibits for Current Educational Themes Annette Scheersoi, Sue

Dale Tunnicliffe,2018-11-14 This book presents the history of natural history dioramas in museums their building and science learning aspects as well as current developments and their place in the visitor experience From the early 1900s with the passage of time and changes in cultural norms in societies this genre of exhibits evolved in response to the changes in entertainment expectations and expressed needs of museum visitors The challenge has always been to provide meaningful relevant experiences to visitors and this is still the aim today Dioramas are also increasingly valued as learning tools Contributions in this book specifically focus on their educational potential In practice dioramas are used by a wide range of educational practitioners to assist learners in developing and understanding specific concepts such as climate change evolution or or conservation issues In this learning process dioramas not only contribute to scientific understanding and cultural awareness but also reconnect wide audiences to the natural world and thereby contribute to the well being of societies In the simultaneously published book Natural History Dioramas Traditional Exhibits for Current Educational Themes Socio cultural Aspects the editors focus on socio cultural issues and the potential of using dioramas to engage various audiences with and in contemporary debates and big issues which society and the natural environment are facing

Geography, Technology and Instruments of Exploration Fraser MacDonald,Charles W.J. Withers,2016-04-22 Focusing on aspects of the functioning of technology and by looking at instruments and at instrumental performance this book addresses the epistemological questions arising from examining the technological bases to geographical exploration and knowledge claims Questions of geography and exploration and technology are addressed in historical and contemporary context and in different geographical locations and intellectual cultures The collection brings together scholars in the history of geographical exploration historians of science historians of technology and importantly experts with curatorial responsibilities for and museological expertise in major instrument collections Ranging in their focus from studies of astronomical practice to seismography meteorological instruments and rockets from radar to the hand held barometer the chapters of this book examine the ways in which instruments and questions of technology too often overlooked hitherto offer insight into the connections between geography and exploration Analyzing Art and Aesthetics Anne Collins

Goodyear,Margaret A. Weitekamp,2013-10-30 This ninth volume of the Artefacts series explores how artists have responded to developments in science and technology past and present Rather than limiting the discussion to art alone editors Anne Collins Goodyear and Margaret Weitekamp also asked contributors to consider aesthetics the scholarly consideration of sensory responses to cultural objects When considered as aesthetic objects how do scientific instruments or technological innovations reflect and embody culturally grounded assessments about appearance feel and use And when these objects become museum artifacts what aesthetic factors affect their exhibition Contributors found answers in the material objects themselves This volume reconsiders how science technology art and aesthetics impact one another Histories of

Exhibition Design in the Museum Kate Guy,Hajra Williams,Claire Wintle,2023-11-30 Histories of Exhibition Design in the Museum Makers Process and Practice offers a new model for understanding exhibition design in museums as a human and material process. It presents diverse case studies from around the world from the nineteenth century to the recent past. It moves beyond the power of the finished exhibition over both objects and visitors to highlight historic exhibition making as an ongoing task of adaptation, experimentation, and interaction that involves intellectual, creative, and technical choices. Attentive to hierarchies of ethnicity, race, class, gender, sexuality, and ableism that have informed exhibition design and its histories, the volume highlights the labour involved in making museum exhibitions. It presents design as filled with personal and professional demands on the body, senses, and emotions. Contributions from historians, anthropologists, and exhibition makers focus on histories of identity, collaboration, and hierarchy behind the scenes of the museum. They argue for an emphasis on the everyday objects of museum design and the importance of a diverse range of actors within and beyond the museum, from carpenters and label writers to volunteers and local communities.

Histories of Exhibition Design in the Museum offers scholars, students, and professionals working across the museum and design sectors insight into how past methods still influence museums today. Through a postcolonial and decolonial lens, it reveals the lineage of current processes and supports a more informed contemporary practice.

Making a Mark Andrew Meirion Jones, Marta Díaz-Guardamino, 2019-03-31. The visual imagery of Neolithic Britain and Ireland is spectacular. While the imagery of passage tombs such as Knowth and Newgrange are well known, the rich imagery on decorated portable artefacts is less well understood. How does the visual imagery found on decorated portable artefacts compare with other Neolithic imagery such as passage tomb art and rock art? How do decorated portable artefacts relate chronologically to other examples of Neolithic imagery? Using cutting-edge digital imaging techniques, the Making a Mark project examined Neolithic decorated portable artefacts of chalk, stone, bone, antler, and wood from three key regions: southern England and East Anglia, the Irish Sea region, Wales, the Isle of Man, and eastern Ireland, and Northeast Scotland and Orkney. Digital analysis revealed for the first time the prevalence of practices of erasure and reworking amongst a host of decorated portable artefacts, changing our understanding of these enigmatic artefacts. Rather than mark making being a peripheral activity, we can now appreciate the central importance of mark making to the formation of Neolithic communities across Britain and Ireland. The volume visually documents and discusses the contexts of the decorated portable artefacts from each region, discusses the significance and chronology of practices of erasure and reworking, and compares these practices with those found in other Neolithic contexts such as passage tomb art, rock art, and pottery decoration. A contribution from Antonia Thomas also discusses the settlement art and mortuary art of Orkney, while Ian Dawson and Louisa Minkin contribute with a discussion of the collaborative fine art practices established during the project.

Disability Studies and the Classical Body Ellen Adams, 2021-05-13 By triangulating the Greco Roman world classical reception and disability studies this book presents a range of approaches that reassess and reimagine traditional themes from the narrative voice to sensory studies It argues that disability and disabled people are the forgotten other of not just Classics but also the Humanities more widely Beyond the moral merits of rectifying this neglect this book also provides a series of approaches and case studies that demonstrate the intellectual value of engaging with disability studies as classicists and exploring the classical legacy in the medical humanities The book is presented in four parts Communicating and controlling impairment illness and pain Using creating and showcasing disability supports and services Real bodies and retrieving senses disability in the ritual record and Classical reception as the gateway between Classics and disability studies Chapters by scholars from different academic backgrounds are carefully paired in these sections in order to draw out further contrasts and nuances and produce a sum that is more than the parts The volume also explores how the ancient world and its reception have influenced medical and disability literature and how engagements with disabled people might lead to reinterpretations of familiar case studies such as the Parthenon This book is primarily intended for classicists interested in disabled people in the Greco Roman past and in how modern disability studies may offer insights into and reinterpretations of historic case studies It will also be of interest to those working in medical humanities sensory studies and museum studies and those exploring the wider tension between representation and reality in ancient contexts As such it will appeal to people in the wider Humanities who notwithstanding any interest in how disabled people are represented in literature art and cinema have had less engagement with disability studies and the lived experience of people with impairments
