Ablow, Living with the Unimaginable Tawna Righter, 2010-10-01 This is the book that Tawna Righter never wanted to write But as she recovered after two profound tragedies she realized that there were men women and children who had suffered this same heartbreak that of a murder suicide of friends loved ones fellow students and co workers yet had no printed guide from which they could derive support information and resources Living With the Unimaginable Life in the Aftermath of Murder Suicide is Tawna Righter's answer to this need In 1990 her best friend's husband killed his wife and then himself leaving behind small children and friends who were confused and distraught How could this happen The author could not imagine such an act And yet eight years later her own son killed his girlfriend and then himself Struggling with profound grief Righter followed a path toward recovery a path culminating with this supportive compassionate and valuable guide Each section in this book acts as a support mechanism addressing the myriad emotions from anger to loss that survivors inevitably experience From the nightmare of the tragic event to the quest to understand why from learning to live with the grief to providing comfort to the survivors everything is explained through Righter's own experiences and those of the people she interviews There is nothing lightweight about her approach she tackles the hard issues head on and yet readers find hope and compassion and they soon understand that life goes on albeit in a different and newly defined way

Suicide in East German Literature Robert Blankenship, 2017 The many fictional suicides in the literature of the German Democratic Republic have been greatly misunderstood The common assumption is that authoritarian oppression in East Germany led to an anomalous abundance of real suicides so that fictional suicides in GDR literature constitute a simple realistic reflection of East German society Robert Blankenship challenges this assumption by providing both a history of suicide in GDR literature and close readings of individual texts revealing that suicides in GDR literature rather than simply reflecting historical suicides contain rich literary attributes such as intertextuality haunting epistolarity and unorthodox narrative strategies Such literariness offered subversive potential beyond suggesting that real people killed themselves in a communist country This first book length study of fictional suicides in East German literature provides insight into the complex and dynamic rhetoric of the GDR Blankenship's underlying claim is that GDR literature ought to be read as literature with literary methodology not despite the country's politically and rhetorically charged nature but precisely because of it Suicide in East German Literature will be of interest to scholars of GDR literature humanities oriented scholars of suicide and those who are interested in the complex relationship between literature and history ROBERT BLANKENSHIP is Assistant Professor of German at California State University Long Beach
