Network Competition For European Telecommunications:

Network Competition for European Telecommunications Oliver Stehmann, 1995 The telecommunications industry is in the throes of rapid technological and regulatory change Markets for terminals and services have been liberalized and only the provision of networks has remained under the control of national operators This book analyses from an economist's point of view the benefits which may be expected from the introduction of network competition in Europe and describes how competition can be reconciled with social objectives The author discusses the convergence of broadcasting and telecommunications network competition policy in Europe and the USA the European Commission's approach and a strategy for network competition in Europe which takes into account both the latest developments and the characteristics of the European environment

Trans-European Telecommunication Networks Colin Turner, 1997 The provision of advanced telecommunication networks is increasingly pivotal in determining an economy's performance This study examines the importance of these networks within the EU and questions their role in promoting economic regeneration and renewal in Europe Examining the nature of telecommunication networks and the rationale for the development of trans European networks the study explores the features networks need to exhibit if they are to complement the broad themes of Europe's industrial policy and demonstrated the economic importance of advanced telecommunications to business The final chapters of the volume offer an analysis of the technology associated with the three chosen priorities of the EU in the development of advanced telecommunication infrastructure the Integrated Digital Network ISDN and the development of telematic network the development of broadband networks

Communications in EU Law : Antitrust Market Power and Public Interest Antonio Bavasso, 2003-01-01 Approaching the theme from an antitrust perspective and focusing on telecommunications and television broadcasting this volume examines how traditional European competition law doctrines and principles can be applied to this converging sector The application of antitrust rules to the communications sector is often one of the most controversial areas of law and policy The shift towards a more competition law oriented form of regulation is one of the main principles inspiring the recent reform of European sectorial regulation enshrined in the 2002 Electronic Communication Package The Package was adopted in 2002 and is in the process of being implemented throughout the Union This monograph provides a detailed description of the new regulatory package and highlights the interplay between regulatory provisions and EC competition law It then follows the pattern of a typical antitrust analysis containing chapters on the definition of relevant market in the sector and various forms of abuses of market power The book also critically examines the Commission's practice and policy in the field of merger control and considers its relationship with wider regulatory policies Finally it analyses the sector from the perspective of the European public interest and the changed nature of communications as a public service

European Telecommunications Liberalisation Kjell A. Eliassen, Marit Sjøvaag Nfa, Marit Sjøvaag, 2013-03-04 This book examines the process and consequences of telecommunications liberalisation in the context of an ever closer

European Union The creation of a single market for telecommunications and of a wider European single market mirror one another Telecommunications are also something of a test case for the privatisation process as this sector has traditionally been a state monopoly The volume approaches the European experience from three angles the politics of regulation and the process of liberalisation in the EU including case studies of the UK France and Germany increasing global economic interdependence makes international comparisons essential and the volume compares the EU experience with that of the Czech Republic Israel and Thailand the consequences of technology and continuous innovation Promoting local network competition : competitive issues in European telecommunications ; with a case study of Italy Cento Veljanovski,1996
