Long Range Plan For The Federal Courts:

Proposed Long Range Plan for the Federal Courts Judicial Conference of the United States. Committee on Long Range Planning, 1995 This first comprehensive plan for the future of the federal courts responds to a growing awareness within and without the courts that the accelerating pace of social change requires public institutions to anticipate likely future challenges and opportunities The Constitution vests the federal courts with the judicial power of the United States power which the courts are bound to exercise justly speedily and economically To meet that responsibility the courts must first and above all preserve the rule of law At the same time they must respond to the changing needs of society litigants and the practicing bar The federal courts intend that this first plan along with the planning process that it has initiated will foster those two imperatives p 1

Congress and Crime Joseph F. Zimmerman, 2014-08-06 Congress in the latter part of the nineteenth century decided to enact a series of statutes facilitating state enforcement of their respective criminal laws Subsequently Congress enacted statutes federalizing what had been solely state crimes thereby establishing federal court and state court concurrent jurisdiction over these crimes Federalization of state crimes has been criticized by numerous scholars U S Supreme Court justices and national organizations Such federalization has congested the calendars of the U S District Court and the U S Court of Appeals leading to delays in civil cases because of the Speedy Trial Act that vacates a criminal indictment if a trial is not commenced within a specific number of days resulted in over crowded U S penitentiaries and raises the issue of double jeopardy that is prohibited by the Fifth Amendment to the U S Constitution and the constitution of each state This book examines the impact of federalization of state crime and draws conclusions regarding its desirability It also offers recommendations directed to Congress and the President one recommendation direct to state legislatures for remedial actions to reduce the undesirable effects of federalized state crimes and one recommendation that Congress and all states
