The Development of the Concept of SMELL in American English Daniela Pettersson-Traba,2022-10-24 The last decades have witnessed a renewed interest in near synonymy In particular recent distributional corpus based approaches used for semantic analysis have successfully uncovered subtle distinctions in meaning between near synonyms However most studies have dealt with the semantic structure of sets of near synonyms from a synchronic perspective while their diachronic evolution generally has been neglected Against this backdrop the aim of this book is to examine five adjectival near synonyms in the history of American English from the understudied semantic domain of SMELL fragrant perfumed scented sweet scented and sweet smelling Their distribution is analyzed across a wide range of contexts including semantic morphosyntactic and stylistic ones since distributional patterns of this type serve as a proxy for semantic dissimilarity The data is submitted to various univariate and multivariate statistical techniques making it possible to uncover fine grained dissimilarities among the near synonyms as well as possible changes in their prototypical structures The book sheds valuable light on the diachronic development of lexical near synonyms a dimension that has up to now been relatively disregarded

No translation is perfect Marco Sievers, 2007-07-12. Essay from the year 2006 in the subject Interpreting Translating grade 2. Liverpool John Moores University course Translation Studies language English abstract. The basic assumption of laymen concerning translation is that every word or meaning can universally be translated from one language to another. Their idea of translation is that of a straightforward mechanical process which simply replaces source language (SL) items with target language (TL) items. Some conceptions in translation studies seem to encourage this view and debates suggest that it is only a matter of the right scope, focus or technique to create perfect translations. The paper at hand will refute this notion. It will prove and exemplify the facts that not everything is translatable and that a transfer of meaning necessarily involves changes entailing loss or gain of linguistic, cultural and stylistic features. cf. Harvey 2001: 38; Pym/Turk 2001: 274. Translation cannot create an identical TL copy of the SL text but only permits a relative equivalence to it. A maximal approximation, however, can never be achieved due to the complexity of language, its dependence on constantly changing cultural norms and because of the human factor. Especially the aspect acceptance by the audience will show that perfection is just an abstract evaluative term which largely depends on individual taste.
