Satisficing Games and Decision Making Wynn C. Stirling, 2003-07-03 In our day to day lives we constantly make decisions which are simply good enough rather than optimal Most computer based decision making algorithms on the other hand doggedly seek only the optimal solution based on rigid criteria and reject any others In this book Professor Stirling outlines an alternative approach using novel algorithms and techniques which can be used to find satisficing solutions Building on traditional decision and game theory these techniques allow decision making systems to cope with more subtle situations where self and group interests conflict perfect solutions can't be found and human issues need to be taken into account in short more closely modelling the way humans make decisions The book will therefore be of great interest to engineers computer scientists and mathematicians working on artificial intelligence and expert systems     Hoyle's Games Edmond Hoyle,1914     Live Performance and Video Games Réjane Dreifuss,Simon Hagemann,Izabella Pluta,2024-10-30 Narrative strategies immersion interaction participation identification multimodality characters and the connection between physical and fictional or virtual worlds the fields of inquiry into the complex relationship between live performance and video games are numerous and diverse For the first time this collection brings together international researchers and artists to explore this relationship in a variety of essays The contributors to this volume focus on reciprocal inspirations appropriations and transfers applied by theatre artists game designers and researchers They analyze several artistic forms such as VR performance immersive theatre speedrunning or game theatre
