Taylor, 2012-03-27 Mark C Taylor provocatively claims that contemporary art has lost its way With the art market now mirroring the art of finance many artists create works solely for the purpose of luring investors and inspiring trade among hedge funds and private equity firms When art is commodified corporatized and financialized it loses its critical edge and is transformed into a financial instrument calculated to maximize profitable returns Joseph Beuys Matthew Barney James Turrell and Andy Goldsworthy are artists who differ in style yet they all defy the trends that have diminished art's potential in recent decades They understand that art is a transformative practice drawing inspiration directly and indirectly from ancient and modern Eastern and Western forms of spirituality For Beuys anthroposophy alchemy and shamanism drive his multimedia presentations for Barney and Goldsworthy Celtic mythology informs their art and for Turrell Quakerism and Hopi myth and ritual shape his vision Eluding traditional genres and classifications these artists combine spiritually inspired styles and techniques with material reality creating works that resist merging space into cyberspace in a way that overwhelms local contexts with global networks Their art reminds us of life's irreducible materiality and humanity's inescapability of place For them art is more than just an object or process it is a vehicle transforming human awareness through actions echoing religious ritual By lingering over the extraordinary work of Beuys Barney Turrell and Goldsworthy Taylor not only creates a novel and personal encounter with their art but also opens a new understanding of overlooked spiritual dimensions in our era      The Prosthetic Impulse Marquard Smith, Joanne Morra, 2006 Where does the body end Exploring the material and metaphorical borderline between flesh and its accompanying technologies      A World History of Art Hugh Honour, John Fleming, 2005 Over two decades this art historical tour de force has consistently proved the classic introduction to humanity's artistic heritage From our paleolithic past to our digitised present every continent and culture is covered in an articulate and well balanced discussion

In this Seventh Edition the text has been revised to embrace developments in archaeology and art historical research while the renowned contemporary art historian Michael Archer has greatly expanded the discussion of the past twenty years providing a new perspective on the latest developments The insight elegance and fluency that the authors bring to their text are complemented by 1458 superb illustrations half of which are now in colour These images together with the numerous maps and architectural plans have been chosen to represent the most significant chronological regional and individual styles of artistic expression
