Punjab Colonial Challenge And Popular Response:

Artisans, Sufis, Shrines Hussain Ahmad Khan, 2014-12-19 In nineteenth century Punjab a cultural tug of war ensued as both Sufi mystics and British officials aimed to engage the local artisans as a means of realizing their ideological ambitions. When it came to influence and impact the Sufi shrines had a huge advantage over the colonial art institutions such as the Mayo School of Arts in Lahore. The mystically inspired shrines built as a statement of Muslim ruling ambitions were better suited to the task of appealing to local art traditions. By contrast the colonial institutions rooted in the Positivist Romanticism of the Victorian West found assimilation to be more of a challenge. In questioning their relative success and failures at influencing local culture the book explores the extent to which political control translates into cultural influence. Folktales, Sufi shrines, colonial architecture, institutional education methods and museum exhibitions all provide a wealth of sources for revealing the complex dynamic between the Punjabi artisans, the Sufi community and the colonial British. In this unique look at a little explored aspect of India's history Hussain Ahmad Khan explores this evidence in order to illuminate this web of cultural influences. Examining the Sufi artisan relationship within the various contexts of political revolt, the decline of the Mughals and the struggle of the Sufis to establish an Islamic state, this book argues that Sufi shrines were initially constructed with the aim of affirming a distinct Muslim identity. At the same time art institutions established by colonial officials attempted to promote eclectic architecture representing the British Indian empire as well as to revive the pre-colonial traditions with which they had previously seemed out of touch. This important book sheds new light on the dynamics of power and culture in the British Empire.

Surprisingly there is no dearth of people even today who still carry a heavy baggage of outdated notions about Punjab history. The six essays given here try to correct some of these wrong notions at length.

Punjab Sounds Radha Kapuria, Vebhuti Duggal, 2024-12-13 Punjab Sounds nuances our understanding of the region's imbrications with sound. It argues that rather than being territorially bounded, the region only emerges in regioning. In words, gestures, objects, and techniques that do the region. Regioning sound reveals the relationship between sound and the region in three interlinked ways: in doing, knowing, and feeling the region through sound. The volume covers several musical genres of the Punjab region, including within its geographical remit the Punjabi diaspora and east and west Punjab. It also provides new understandings of the role that ephemeral cultural expressions, especially music and sound, play in the formulation of Punjabi identity. Featuring contributions from scholars across North America, South Asia, Europe, and the UK, it brings together diverse perspectives. The chapters use a range of different methods, ranging from computational analysis and ethnography to close textual analysis, demonstrating some of the ways in which research on music and sound can be carried out. The chapters will be relevant for anyone working on Punjab's music, including the Punjabi diaspora music and sound in the Global South. Moreover, it will be useful for undergraduate and postgraduate students in the following areas:

ethnomusicology, cultural studies, film studies, music studies, South Asian studies, Punjab studies, history, and sound studies among others.

Challenge, Continuity, and Change in Pakistan Amit Ranjan, Ian Talbot, 2025-09-30. This book brings a multi-disciplinary approach to studying Pakistan's contemporary political, social, and environmental challenges. It offers insights from various disciplines to show the interconnectedness of many of Pakistan's problems and their historical roots. The analysis includes issues of political alienation and exclusion, vulnerability to climate change-induced disasters, and how such challenges might be mitigated. The case studies in the book reveal that reality is complex and that demographic, social, and technological change is moving apace in Pakistan. This dynamism points to another aspect of Pakistan and its resilience in the face of manmade and natural disasters. An increasingly youthful and urbanised population is challenging social inequalities and power structures whilst the state attempts to respond in old ways to maintain order and stability. The emergence of overseas Pakistani communities and their connectedness with the homeland is another growing development with ramifications for politics and society. A significant contribution on critical affairs in Pakistan, this book investigates if the country is moving towards a critical crossroads in its development. It will be of interest to historians and political scientists of Modern South Asia as well as geographers interested in examining the impact of climate change.

Communalism and Globalization in South Asia and Its Diaspora Deana Heath, Chandana Mathur, 2010-12-22. Taking as its premise the belief that communalism is not a resurgence of tradition but is instead an inherently modern phenomenon as well as a product of the fundamental agencies and ideas of modernity, and that globalization is neither a unique nor unprecedented process, this book addresses the question of whether globalization has amplified or muted processes of communalism. It does so through exploring the concurrent histories of communalism and globalization in four South Asian contexts: India, Pakistan, Bangladesh, and Sri Lanka, as well as in various diasporic locations from the nineteenth century to the present. Including contributions by some of the most notable scholars working on communalism in South Asia and its diaspora, as well as by some challenging new voices the book encompasses both different disciplinary and theoretical perspectives It looks at a range of methodologies in an effort to stimulate new debates on the relationship between communalism and globalization and is a useful contribution to studies on South Asia and Asian History The Insecurity State Mark Condos,2017-08-03 A provocative examination of how the British colonial experience in India was shaped by chronic unease anxiety and insecurity

Post-Colonial State in the Era of Capitalist Globalization Tariq Amin-Khan,2012-03-12 State formation in post colonial societies differed greatly from the formation of the Western capitalist state The latter has been extensively studied while a coherent grasp of the post colonial state has remained elusive Amin Khan provides a critical historical and contemporary understanding of post colonial state formations in Asia and Africa and suggests how this process differed from the formation of states in Latin America In distinguishing between the post colonial state and the Western capitalist state the author argues that the unitary colonial state left a strong legacy on the decolonized states of Asia and Africa reinscribing their subordination vis vis Western states transnational corporations and multilateral institutions The indigenous elites decision at the time of decolonization to retain colonial state structures meant the readaptation of capitalism imperialism nexus to suit new post colonial realities which enabled the formation of clientelist relationships This post colonial reality and exploration of the contemporary context provides the basis of analyzing two post colonial state forms the capitalist and proto capitalist varieties which are examined using the case studies of India and Pakistan The Press in Colonial India Nayeem
