Rise Of Civilization In East Asia The Archaeology Of China Korea And Japan:

Archaeology of East Asia Gina L. Barnes, 2015-10-31 Archaeology of East Asia constitutes an introduction to social and political development from the Palaeolithic to 8th century early historic times It takes a regional view across China Korea Japan and their peripheries that is unbounded by modern state lines This viewpoint emphasizes how the region drew on indigenous developments and exterior stimuli to produce agricultural technologies craft production political systems religious outlooks and philosophies that characterize the civilization of historic and even modern East Asia This book is a complete rewrite and update of The Rise of Civilization in East Asia first published in 1993 It incorporates the many theoretical technical and factual advances of the last two decades including DNA gender and isotope studies AMS radiocarbon dating and extensive excavation results Readers of that first edition will find the same structure and topic progression While many line drawings have been retained new color illustrations abound Boxes and Appendices clarify and add to the understanding of unfamiliar technologies For those seeking more detail the Appendices also provide case studies that take intimate looks at particular data and current research The book is suitable for general readers East Asian historians and students archaeology students and professionals Praise for The Rise of Civilization in East Asia the best English introduction to the archaeology of East Asia brilliantly integrates the three areas into a broad regional context Prof Mark Hudson

The Rise of Civilization in East Asia Gina Lee Barnes, 1993 Here is the first synthesis ever published of East Asian archaeology and early history Drawing on dramatic new evidence made available since the 1970s it charts the critical developments that culminated in the emergence of the region in the eighth century as a coherent entity with a shared religion Buddhism state philosophy Confucianism and bureaucratic structure The narrative begins over a million years ago when early humans first colonized the Far East and it continues through the growth of fishing and farming societies at the end of the Ice Age to the rise of social elites during the Bronze Age and the emergence of civilization in Shang Zhou and Han China The author follows the spread of rice based agriculture trade and interactions between the different cultures and the diffusion of common forms of city planning and administration Copious photographs and drawings complement the text
