Rise Of The Chinese Consumer Theory And Evidence:

The Rise of the Chinese Consumer Jonathan Garner, 2005-11-01 In this book Jonathan Garner and his colleagues at Credit Suisse First Boston argue that by 2014 the Chinese consumer will likely have displaced the US consumer as the engine of growth in the global economy Government policy is rebalancing demand within the Chinese economy from investment spending to consumption spending Strong trend economic growth over the cycle a rise in the consumption to GDP ratio and steady exchange rate appreciation will likely generate an 18% compound annual growth rate in the US dollar value of Chinese consumption spending over the next ten years and lead to a quadrupling in China's share of global consumption spending In order to identify the companies and brands which are best placed to succeed in China's rapidly developing mass consumer market Garner and his colleagues discuss the results of the first comprehensive survey of consumer attitudes and preferences to have been conducted in China covering 2 700 persons in eight major Chinese cities This survey provides valuable data for the business executive or academic seeking detailed local information on sectors including automobiles beverages electronic goods financial services food producers food retail food services household personal care luxury goods telecommunication equipment tobacco and transport and leisure travel China is likely to be the single most important influence on the fortunes of investors and corporates alike over the next five years and yet little is known of what motivates and drives the Chinese consumer By canvassing the people that matter and reflect the changing face of this massive country Jonathan Garner has provided investors with a unique insight Philip Ehrmann Head of Pacific Emerging Markets Gartmore Investment Management Plc

Chinese Television in the Twenty-First Century Ruoyun Bai, Geng Song, 2014-09-15 The past two decades witnessed the rise of television entertainment in China Although television networks are still state owned and Party controlled in China the ideological landscape of television programs has become increasingly diverse and even paradoxical simultaneously subservient and defiant nationalistic and cosmopolitan moralistic and fun loving extravagant and mundane Studying Chinese television as a key node in the network of power relationships therefore provides us with a unique opportunity to understand the tension fraught and paradox permeated conditions of Chinese post socialism This book argues for a serious engagement with television entertainment rethinking It addresses the following questions How is entertainment television politically and culturally significant in the Chinese context How have political industrial and technological changes in the 2000s affected the way Chinese television relates to the state and society How can we think of media regulation and censorship without perpetuating the myth of a self serving authoritarian regime vs a subdued cultural workforce What do popular televisual texts tell us about the unsettled and reconfigured relations between commercial television and the state The book presents a number of studies of popular television programs that are sensitive to the changing production and regulatory contexts for Chinese television in the twenty first century As an interdisciplinary study of the television industry this book covers a number of important issues in China today such as censorship nationalism consumerism social justice and the central and local authorities As such it will appeal to a broad audience including students and scholars of Chinese culture and society media studies television studies and cultural studies

Consumption Motives in Luxury Marketing Laura Helena Hartmann, 2015-07-10 This dissertation is devoted to attitudes of consumers toward luxury in two agricultural markets horse sports and foods Literature postulates a change of perceived luxury definitions and motives for luxury consumption Accordingly personally oriented luxury consumption has gained significance while socially oriented motives have been pushed into the background Based on this the following studies were aimed to reveal how far it has affected the consumer behavior in both agricultural markets The research results are used to define the target groups for different kinds of luxury marketing and to give recommendations for the design of accordant marketing strategies The studies provide empirical evidence for the existence of a shift of motives for luxury consumption and luxury definitions away from prestige and conspicuousness toward self realization hedonism intangible values functionality sustainability and authenticity Moreover the results imply that luxury consumption can be categorized in tangible luxury goods and luxury experience Despite intersections by means of hedonism and self realization the studies revealed differences in the consumption motives for both categories of luxury

Consumer-Citizens of China Kelly Tian, Lily Dong, 2010-11-01 A PDF version of this book is available for free in open access via www.tandfebooks.com as well as the OAPEN Library platform www.oapen.org It has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives 3.0 license and is part of the OAPEN UK research project This book presents a comprehensive examination of Chinese consumer behaviour and challenges the previously dichotomous interpretation of the consumption of Western and non Western brands in China The dominant position is that Chinese consumers are driven by a desire to imitate the lifestyles of Westerners and thereby advance their social standing locally The alternative is that consumers reject Western brands as a symbolic gesture of loyalty to their nation state Drawing from survey responses and in depth interviews with Chinese consumers in both rural and urban areas Kelly Tian and Lily Dong find that consumers situate Western brands within select historical moments This embellishment attaches historical meanings to Western brands in ways that render them useful in asserting preferred visions of the future China By highlighting how Western brands are used in contests for national identity Consumer Citizens of China challenges the notion of the patriot s paradox and answers scholars questions as to whether Chinese nationalists today allow for a Sino Western space where the Chinese can love China without hating the West Consumer Citizens of China will be of interest to students and scholars of business studies Chinese and Asian Studies and Political Science Kelly Tian is Professor of Marketing and holds the Anderson Chair of Business at New Mexico State University Lily Dong is Associate Professor of Marketing at the University of Alaska at Fairbanks

Reform in Global Perspective John Wong, Zhiyue Bo, 2010 This book provides a fascinating perspective of the experiences of China's reform in the past three decades by focusing on China's interaction with and learning from the external world in her unprecedented efforts to reform and open up After three introductory chapters on broad scope of reform in the political economic and social realms this book deals with lessons from the Eastern Bloc China's reform in East Asian context and China and the developed world The book concludes with two chapters looking to the future of China's political and economic development In the existing literature of China's reform experience this book is unique in perspective topic selection and in depth analyses With contributions from a group of prominent scholars in the field of China studies such as John Wong Zheng Yongnian Thomas P Bernstein Dorothy J Solinger and Bo Zhiyue it will be of immense value to anyone who is interested in China

Living in a Material World Kevin Morrison, 2008-12-08 At a time when the world is grappling with rising food and energy prices and climate change Living in a Material World provides an insight into some of the contributing factors behind these challenges The emergence of new consumers in China India Russia and the Middle East has added formidable competition to the natural resources that have been taken for granted in the developed world Everything we consume involves the use of metals fossil fuels or agriculture Our high tech lifestyles depend on the secure supply of these raw materials which we take from planet earth and use to make our lives more comfortable more productive or more manageable The effect of this increasing global demand for commodities has pushed up prices of materials from oil and copper to corn and wheat forcing consumers to pay more for the many necessities of life from a loaf of bread to electricity bills Since the commodity boom has unfolded commodities have gone from the back page of the newspaper to the front with more and more headlines about record food and oil prices dire climate change warnings energy security and China's demand for more raw materials This era of high oil and food prices is no passing phase The supply of many key natural resources is stretched to the limit But what is the real cost Living in a Material World makes the link between raw materials and the consumer and shows how they are relevant to everybody everyday now more so than at any time since the last oil shock nearly three decades ago A unique insight into this once in a generation boom the book shows how the increasing value of commodities is impacting on consumers and investors in ways we are only just beginning to understand It was a great pleasure to read this book which provides an essential background to understanding commodities for anybody interested in understanding them more closely It is so rare to see all the essential elements brought together in one book Chris Brodie Krom River Partners LLP Kevin Morrison set out to write a book about the daily relevance that raw materials have for the ordinary consumer He has achieved his objective par excellence The subject matter has been comprehensively researched and well documented yet the writer has avoided using complicated technical language The style of the book is more in tune with a novel and the main topics are treated with a special sense of humour I would readily recommend this work to anyone interested in how global energy issues have a direct affect on us all Mehdi Varzi President Varzi Energy London
