book brings together a range of diverse discussions about security in order to sustain a genuine critique of the subject. It is unique in its examination of the historical and political links between social security and national security and in its assessment of the way that emergency powers as the most intense realisation of the rhetoric of national security have been synthesised with normal law. Among other ideas and concepts Mark Neocleous discusses the place of security in the liberal tradition of political theory. Building on insights from Foucault and Marx he argues that liberalism's central category is not liberty but security. He also deals with the role of security in justifying the introduction and continuation of emergency powers through a historical excavation of the state of emergency, a political reading of the way emergency powers are only tangentially concerned with warfare and a theoretical reading of the debate between Schmitt and Benjamin Effective Physical Security Lawrence J. Fennelly, 2013-10-22 Vulnerability assessment and target hardening encompass very important components of the crime and loss prevention field. This book, written by a collection of specialists in the field, contains a wealth of practical, immediately useful information. Lawrence J. Fennelly is an independent security consultant in Cambridge, Massachusetts. A graduate of the National Crime Prevention Institute, Mr Fennelly is a member of the International Society of Crime Prevention Practitioners and the American Society of Industrial Security. He is the author of numerous books on security and crime prevention, easy reference text, written by specialists in the field. General Motors Corporation v. House Appropriations, 1944 America's Security in the 1980s Christoph Bertram, 1982-06-18 Democratic Transition and Security in Pakistan Shaun Gregory, 2015-10-23 This volume examines the trajectory of Pakistan's democratic transition and the implications of this change for its security. In May 2013, for the first time in its 66-year history, Pakistan saw an elected government complete a full term in office and transfer power through the ballot box to another civilian government. At this important moment in Pakistan's history, this collection brings together twelve leading academics and writers with an aim to provide a far-reaching analysis of the current situation in Pakistan and emergent trends. Drawing on history, diverse theoretical perspectives and empirical evidence, three themed sections deal respectively with democratic transition, including Islam and democracy, civil-military relations and economics, contested borders and contested spaces, the Pashtun belt, Kashmir and intra-Islamic conflict, and regionalism, bilateral relations from both Pakistani and Indian perspectives, US-Pakistan relations and nuclear weapons dynamics. Together, the contributors explore the status of Pakistan's democratic transition, contemporary security dynamics and wider regional security and political dynamics, and the complex interplay of the three to provide a wide-ranging analysis of Pakistan's contemporary national and regional challenges, its impact on the region, and evidence of some positive trends for Pakistan's future. The book will be of much interest to students of South Asian politics, Asian security governance and IR in general, as well as policy makers, diplomats and military professionals.
