Swidler, Paul Mojzes, 2000 Religion is the most fundamental comprehensive of all human activities it tries to make sense out of not simply one or another aspect of human life but of all aspects of human experience At the core of every civilization lies its religion which both reflects and shapes it Thus if we wish to understand human life in general and our specific culture and history we need to understand religion What is religion Religion is an explanation of the ultimate meaning of life and how to live accordingly based on a notion of the Transcendent Normally it contains the four C's Creed Code Cult Community structure CREED refers To The cognitive aspect of a religion it is everything that goes into the explanation of the ultimate meaning of life CODE OF BEHAVIOR or ethics includes all the rules and customs of action that somehow follow from one aspect or another of the Creed CULT means all the ritual activities that relate the follower to one aspect or another of the Transcendent either directly or indirectly prayer being an example of the former and certain formal behavior toward representatives of the Transcendent such as priests of the latter COMMUNITY STRUCTURE refers To The relationships among the followers this can vary widely from a very egalitarian relationship As among Quakers through a republican structure as Presbyterians have To a monarchical one As with some Hasidic Jews have with their Rebbe THE TRANSCENDENT As the roots of the word indicate means that which goes beyond the everyday The ordinary The surface experience of reality it can mean spirits gods a Personal God An Impersonal God Emptiness etc This volume looks at the ways we humans have developed to study religion. However, a new age in human consciousness is now dawning: The Age of Global Dialogue, a radically new consciousness which fundamentally shifts the ways we understand everything in life, including religion. This global dialogical way of understanding life does not lead to one global religion but it does lead toward a consciously acknowledged common set of ethical principles: a Global Ethic. The book looks at these two movements, the Age of Global Dialogue and the Inchoative Global Ethic, in order to help readers understand what is going on around them so they might make informed, intelligent decisions about the meaning of life and how to live it. Author note: Leonard Swidler is Professor of Religion at Temple University; Paul Mojzsis is Academic Dean and Professor of Religious Studies at Rosemount College.

The Religious Dimensions of Advertising T. Sheffield, 2006-11-13 This groundbreaking work explores media scholar Sut Jhally's thesis that advertising functions as a religion in late capitalism and relates this to critical theological studies. Sheffield argues that advertising is not itself a religion but that it contains religious dimensions analogous to Durkheim's description of objects as totems.

A Guide to the Phenomenology of Religion James L. Cox, 2006-06-15 The phenomenological method in the study of religions has provided the linchpin supporting the argument that Religious Studies constitutes an academic discipline in its own right and thus that it is irreducible either to theology or to the social sciences. This book examines the figures whom the author regards as having been most influential in creating a phenomenology of religion. Background factors drawn from philosophy, theology, and the social sciences are traced before examining the thinking of scholars within the Dutch, British, and North American schools of religious phenomenology.

The Geography of Religion Roger W. Stump, 2008-04-04 The only book of its kind, this balanced and accessibly written text explores the geographical study of religion. Roger W. Stump presents a clear and meticulous examination of the intersection of religious belief and practice with the concepts of place and space. He begins by analyzing the factors that have shaped the spatial distributions of religious groups, including the seminal events that have fostered the organization of religions in diverse hearths and the subsequent processes of migration and conversion that have spread religious beliefs. The author then assesses how major religions have diversified as they have become established in disparate places, producing a variety of religious systems from a common tradition. Stump explores the efforts of religious groups to control secular space at various scales, relating their own uses of particular spaces and the meanings they attribute to space beyond the boundaries of their own communities. Examining sacred space as a diverse but recurring theme in religious belief, the book considers its role in religious forms of spatial behavior and as a source of conflict within and between religious groups. Refreshingly jargon-free and impartial, this text provides a broad comparative view of religion as a focus of geographical inquiry.
