reported here takes a careful and directly comparable look at what characteristics and conditions in the five cities have led to the flourishing of innovation in them. Researchers with detailed local knowledge have applied the same analytical tools and survey techniques to investigating this question and the result presents a unique international comparison of innovation in the five cities.

New Technology and Regional Development Bert Van Der Knapp, Egbert Wever, 2003-08-16. First Published in 2004. Since the second half of the seventies a period of economic recession a growing interest for technological change can be noticed in all old industrial countries. The reason for this phenomenon is the conviction that the economic future of these countries will depend to a large degree on their ability to create new products and processes and to make these commercially viable. Hence the stimulation and subsidising of all kinds of Research and Development R D activities by the governments of these countries. Against this background it was certainly not unexpected that the IGO Commission on Industrial Change presided by Godfrey Linge decided to organise a congress on Technology and Industrial Change. This congress was held in August 1985 at Nijmegen in the Netherlands. In this book some of the papers presented there are published. We are very happy that we were allowed to include the very interesting contributions of the representatives of Philips in Eindhoven and of the European Commission in Brussels.

Global Challenge and Local Response Walter B. Stöhr, 1990. The volume grew out of research undertaken as a part of the UN University's European Perspectives Project. It addresses the consequences of the failure of large scale industrial enterprise and the inability of central government policies to cope with the results of economic restructuring in a series of comparative case studies showing how local communities throughout Europe East and West rural and industrial have responded to economic dislocation and decline and how these local initiatives have become the basis for economic regeneration. Regional Development in an Age of Structural Economic Change Piet Rietveld, Daniel Shefer, 2024-02-22. First published in 1999 this volume addresses various themes in regional development studies from the perspective of structural economic change. Particular attention is paid to factors having long run implications for regional development such as innovation and knowledge production. Innovation and research and development activities appear to take place at particular locations. This has implications for long run spatial and sectoral developments. Another factor is transport infrastructure its impact on efficiency and equity is surveyed. Other themes covered relate to the role of tourism and adjustments in urban economies. The book aims to offer a balance between modelling and non modelling approaches. In addition to country specific contributions some are offered at the European level.

European Regional Development Paweł Churski, Tomasz Herodowicz, Barbara Konecka-Szydłowska, Robert Perdał, 2021-11-18. This book offers a comprehensive overview of contemporary issues of regional development. It places particular emphasis on its socio economic and socio political determinants which accompany the problem of existing and ever widening differences in the level of regional development in various parts of Europe. In order to diagnose the scale of those differences and to indicate the main forces behind the divergence of development the authors propose an original systematisation of regional development factors drawing attention to the need to consider them within the framework of present day socio economic megatrends The proposed approach to the development factors is also used for the author s operationalisation of the concept of territorial capital which is at the centre of regional place based policy The wide spatial aspect of the analysis national and local and its extensive temporal scope 2004 2019 yields unique results and creates an important element of added value for this book which shows the regularities of the process of regional development in Europe at three spatial levels pan European national and intra regional Furthermore it indicates the challenges faced by regionalists who attempt to carry out research on different territorial levels with a diverse number of units 205 EU regions 16 Polish voivodeships 2 478 Polish local units and extended observation periods 2004 2017 The solutions proposed by the authors who show the potential of overcoming the barriers resulting from limited access to complete and comparable statistical data series should be inspiring for many researchers The unique results of direct research carried out on a large sample of respondents and entrepreneurs via diverse field research techniques constitute a valuable source of information on local conditions that impact contemporary development processes in less developed regions Their value is even greater because they were carried out in a unique laboratory created by the authors for testing the regularity of formation and impact of socio economic development factors in various locally determined conditions of this process It consists of purposefully selected test units LAU2 Located in a less developed region they represent all growth types and functional test units identified in the course of the research Consequently the results obtained may be generalised and applied to other areas showing similar features of territorial capital The monograph is addressed primarily to a wide group of regionalists connected with economic and social sciences as well as to practitioners involved in the implementation of development policies at various levels
