Scottish Libraries, 1989 Kindling the Spark Joanne Haroutounian, 2002-03-28 Gathering perspectives of musical talent from the psychological musical and educational fields Kindling the Spark is the only single sourcebook that defines musical talent and provides practical strategies for identifying and nurturing it Joanne Haroutounian uses her experience as teacher researcher and parent to clarify central issues concerning talent recognition and development in a way that will easily appeal to a wide audience The book describes the different stages of development in musical training including guidelines for finding a suitable teacher at different levels social and psychological aspects that impact musical training and research on talent development by ages and stages from infancy and preschool years through the teen years An important feature of the book are sparkler exercises designed to provoke observable talent behavior in home school and studio settings The book also includes an Appendix of Resources which lists books media organizations and specialized schools that offer additional information on musical talent identification and development For music educators in both public school and private studio settings as well as for parents and their musically inclined children Kindling the Spark provides an invaluable summary of the research on talent and a wealth of resources for developing it Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), 1993 Museums and the Representation of Native Canadians Moira McLoughlin, 2018-10-24 If we were to think about museums as three dimensional maps as spaces to be divided defended and privileged what would they tell us about the place of Native Canadians within the larger nation Utilizing a combination of exhibit analysis and interviews this book explores how Canadian history anthropology and art museums have situated Native Canadian history and culture within a larger narrative of nationhood Until very recently these museums have with few exceptions perpetuated the continued isolation of Native Canadians on the Other side of carefully demarcated boundaries of time space and culture Despite a living and highly politicized presence outside their walls inside these museums Native Canadians have remained fixed and isolated in time and space This book discusses how this particular image of Native Canadians has been translated into the numerous dichotomies and borders of the museum between modern and traditional past and present myth and science progress and stasis active and passive and ultimately us and them However in tribal museums and more recent programming at the larger museums we are able to identify alternative maps that realign these borders and give voice to alternative constructions of these histories The past decade has seen enormous change in how museum curators educators and directors imagine their role in these museums and more particularly in the construction of a history of Native Canadians This book considers how museums and those who work within them have responded to the challenge of writing a more complex and multivocal history for the nation Ph D dissertation the Annenberg School for Communication University of Pennsylvania 1992 revised with new preface bibliography and index
