Conventional Wisdom and American Elections Jody C Baumgartner, Peter L. Francia, 2019-11-12 During every election cycle political observers generate a seemingly limitless supply of theories opinions and predictions Unfortunately many of these assertions oversimplify complex subjects or overhype the latest political fads Inevitably some misinformation becomes part of the conventional wisdom about American elections The objective of Conventional Wisdom and American Elections Exploding Myths Exploring Misconceptions is to bring clarity to several of these subjects For example it is now commonplace for commentators to emphasize the negative tactics and practices of the campaigns of presidential candidates In 2016 some commentators suggested that the presidential campaign was the nastiest ever with the campaigns of President Donald Trump Hillary Clinton and their supporters going to new extremes of negativity However these claims are not new Dating as far back as the presidential election of 1800 critics of Thomas Jefferson stated that his potential victory would bring about legal prostitution and the burning of the Bible In 1824 opponents of Andrew Jackson charged that he was a murderer and that his wife was a bigamist Perhaps most scurrilous of all Jackson's opponents even accused his dead mother of being a prostitute In total Conventional Wisdom and American Elections identifies eleven widely held myths and misconceptions about elections in the United States The conclusions drawn throughout the book are based on the most current political science research In some instances the literature is clear in debunking popular myths about American elections On other issues research findings are more mixed In either case Conventional Wisdom and American Elections clarifies the issues so that readers can discern between those in which scholars have largely resolved and those in which honest debate remains

Women Politicians and the Media Maria Braden, 2021-09-15 All American politicians face the glare of media coverage both in running for office and in representing their constituents if elected But for women seeking or holding high public office as Maria Braden demonstrates the scrutiny by newspapers and television can be both withering and damaging a fact that has changed little over the decades despite the emergence of more women in politics and more women in the news media Particularly disturbing is the fact that the increase in the number of women reporters appears to have had little effect on the way women candidates are portrayed in the media Some women reporters in fact seem intent on proving that they can be just as tough on women candidates as their male counterparts thus perpetuating the misrepresentations of the past Braden examines the political fortunes of Jeannette Rankin the first woman elected to the U S House those of the congressional glamour girls of the 1940s Clare Boothe Luce and Helen Gahagan Douglas the long Senate career of Margaret Chase Smith the political struggles of diverse women of more recent decades including Bella Abzug Elizabeth Holtzman Nancy Kassebaum Barbara Jordan Dianne Feinstein and Ann Richards and the disastrous vice presidential bid of Geraldine Ferraro Braden traces a persistent double standard in media coverage of women's political campaigns through the past eighty years Journalists dwell on the candidates novelty in public office and describe them in ways that stereotype and trivialize them Especially demeaning are comments on women s appearance personality and family connections comments of a sort that would rarely be made about men candidates Are they too pretty or too plain What do their clothes say about them Are they feminine enough or too masculine Are they still just ordinary housewives or are they neglecting their families by heading for Washington or the state house Braden s study is based on both media accounts and the revealing personal interviews she conducted with a broad range of recent women politicians including Margaret Chase Smith Bella Abzug Kay Bailey Hutchison Nancy Kassebaum and Ann Richards All describe agonizing struggles to get across to the public the message that they are serious and competent candidates capable of holding high office and shaping our nation s course Media Effects Jennings Bryant,Dolf Zillmann,Mary Beth Oliver,2002-02-01 This new edition updates and expands the scholarship of the 1st edition examining media effects in

Hacker,2020-11-10 During the 1992 presidential campaign health care reform became a hot issue paving the way for one of the most important yet ill fated social policy initiatives in American history Bill Clinton s 1993 proposal for comprehensive coverage under managed competition Here Jacob Hacker not only investigates for the first time how managed competition became the president s reform framework but also illuminates how issues and policies emerge He follows Clinton's policy ideas from their initial formulation by policy experts through their endorsement by medical industry leaders and politicians to their inclusion in a new and unexpected form in the proposal itself Throughout he explores key questions Why did health reform become a national issue in the 1990s Why did Clinton choose managed competition over more familiar options during the 1992 presidential campaign What effect did this have on the fate of his proposal Drawing on records of the President's task force interviews with a wide range of key policy players and many other sources Hacker locates his analysis within the context of current political theories on agenda setting He concludes that Clinton chose managed competition partly because advocates inside and outside the campaign convinced him that it represented a unique middle road to health care reform This conviction Hacker maintains blinded the president and his allies to the political risks of the approach and hindered the development of an effective strategy for enacting it
