Mezard, indigenous conflict resolution mechanism in northern Ethiopia: Assessing rural alamata woreda, Tigray regional state, Ethiopia Yonas Berhane, 2014-02-01. This book is dealt with Mezard institution which seems to be characterized as a democratic institution at least apparently. In the real sense however it lacks an inherently full fledged democratic element. In fact it appears to encourage participation of the public in general but excluding the youth and the women to participate throughout the process and in election of the elders who can handle the existing conflicts. Moreover based on the study conducted in the area this book indicates that the Mezard system is cost effective way of adjudicating cases.

African Conflict Resolution David R. Smock, 1995. When Somali gunmen killed 18 American Rangers in Mogadishu on October 3, 1993, public and congressional support for the American and UN missions in Somalia dropped dramatically. In fact U.S. policymakers began to rethink commitments to peacemaking in Africa in general. Nevertheless many African and U.S. specialists on African affairs including the contributors to this volume strongly urge the United States to continue active engagement with Africa and creatively support African initiatives to manage and resolve their own conflicts. This book brings together nine specialists from Africa and the United States including former diplomats academics policymakers and policy analysts to assess ways to enhance the U S contribution to African efforts to prevent manage and resolve violent conflicts The contributors conclude that U S initiatives can take a variety of forms and need not involve American troops There is a new African willingness to assume responsibility but African institutional and financial capabilities are severely limited African initiatives therefore have little chance of success without significant and sustained international and particularly American involvement

International Multiparty Mediation and Conflict Management Sinisa Vukovic, 2015-10-05 This volume aims to provide a detailed explanation of the effects of cooperation and coordination on international multiparty mediation in conflicts Contemporary scholarship stresses that the crucial ingredients for a successful multiparty mediation are consistency in interests and cooperation and coordination between mediators This book seeks to supplement that understanding by investigating how much the consistency of interests and cooperation and coordination affect the overall process and what happens to the mediation process when mediating parties do not share the same idea and interest in finding a common solution At the same time it explores the obstacles in achieving coordination and coherence between various mediators in such an environment and how to surmount the problems that multiple mediators face when operating without a common script in attempting to mediate a negotiated settlement The study investigates three distinct mechanisms both on the systemic and contextual level that have the potential to deter defection from a potential member of the multiparty mediation coalition geo political shifts changes in the conflict dynamics and mediators ability to bargain for a cooperative relationship As the number of states and international actors that are involved in mediation increases a careful assessment is necessary not only of their relative institutional strengths and weaknesses but also of how to promote complementary efforts and how to synchronize the whole process when one actor is transferring the responsibilities for mediation to others This book will be of much interest to students of mediation conflict management war and conflict studies
