Nominations of D. James Baker, Douglas K. Hall, Kathryn D. Sullivan, Arati Prabhakar, and Clarence L. Irving United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation, 1994 Distributed to some depository libraries in microfiche □□□□□□□□□□, 2005 1400 Walford's Guide to Reference Material: Science and technology Albert John Walford, Library Association, 1996 New Worlds, New Technologies, New Issues Stephen H. Cutcliffe, 1992 In this volume fifteen scholars from the United States Spain Puerto Rico and Colombia discuss the social implications of new technologies Their essays address the cultural worlds that crystallize around technologies the challenges to democracy that they pose and the responsibility of modern technology for forcing a public response to new social and moral issues Three themes define the three sections into which the volume is divided New Worlds New Technologies and New Issues The essays in the section New Worlds range from optimism that new technologies will produce a better world than that of 1992 through a nonjudgmental discussion of the transformation of our lifeworld that new technologies are effecting to deep concern for the viability of the world that modern technology has already created In New Technologies the focus is on political responses to modern technologies The authors in this section see the challenge to understanding and controlling our technological world in reshaping existing relations of social power and authority and in creating new institutions more adequate to the sociopolitical realities of the process of technological innovation While the contributors in the first two sections of the volume argue that broad changes in values and institutions are preconditions of a more beneficent relationship among people nature and technology those in the section New Issues adopt narrower more specific viewpoints Their essays address the political values underlying the Deep Ecology movement the ethics of military technologies the capacity of democratic institutions for a public role in setting technology policies and science and technology literacy mechanisms Collectively these essays reflect the growing international concern with the role played by technological innovation in a rapidly changing world and they point toward the formulation of concrete political platforms for informed social responses to the innovation process Social Science Microsimulation Klaus G. Troitzsch, 1996-09-17 This book gives an overview of the state of the art in five different approaches to social science simulation on the individual level The volume contains microanalytical simulation models designed for policy implementation and evaluation multilevel simulation methods designed for detecting emergent phenomena dynamical game theory applications the use of cellular automata to explain the emergence of structure in social systems and multi agent models using the experience from distributed artificial intelligence applied to special phenomena The book collects the results of an international conference which brought together social scientists and computer scientists both engaged in a wide range of simulation approaches for the first time Military Industry and Regional Defense Policy Timothy D. Hoyt, 2017-07-05 Military Industry and Regional Defense Policy re examines military industrialization in the developing world focusing on policy making in producer states and the impact of security perceptions on such policy making

Timothy D Hoyt reassesses the role of regional state sub systems in international relations and recent historical studies of international technology and arms transfers Looking at Israel Iraq and India the three most powerful regional powers in the Cold War era he presents an expert analysis of the three sided phenomena of the regional hegemony the regional competitor and the small over achiever This new book breaks away from existing literature on military industries in the developing world which has focused on their economic and development costs and benefits These past studies have used primitive methodologies that focus on the production of complete weapons systems a misleading gauge in a world of growing international defense cooperation They have also ignored empirical evidence of the impact of local military industrial production on Cold War regional conflict and of the defence planning and concerns that drove development of indigenous military industries in key regional powers This new text delivers an incisive new perspective

Handbook on International Studies in Education Donald K. Sharpes, 2010-02-01 This Handbook provides windows into worldwide research endeavors including countries not usually widely known in international education studies The goal of this compendium is to foster the understanding of research and education from different national and cultural perspectives and to support the exchange of ideas and people who conduct research and development activities From these varied individual and collaborative research projects we can infer directions for our own research agenda and for policy development The resulting chapters represent a respectable cross section of international research efforts The total is representative of the variety of research techniques Additionally there are more women than men contributors with sufficient representation from Muslim Asian and developing country contributors These seventeen chapters are an indication of what is occurring in the global educational marketplace They represent a sound and current balance of international studies in education that can be used as models for development elsewhere Reading them can motivate researchers everywhere to maintain a high level of scholarship that will benefit international and comparative studies and the academic profession
