New Frontier The Response Of Farmers To Land Degradation A West African Study:

The New Frontier Kojo Amanor, 1994 The rehabilitation of those regions of the Tropics where monocropping has destroyed both local self sufficiency and biologically rich and stable environments is fundamental to the success of any strategy for sustainable development Dr Amanor draws on his study to suggest policies based on regeneration of the local economy diversification of agricultural products and markets community participation in drawing up environmental agendas and utilization of local farmers knowledge Indigenous Land Management in West Africa Kathleen M. Baker, 2000 The success of rural development schemes in Africa particularly those involving land is heavily dependent on understanding the local ecology Any farmer knows this yet rarely has development project design catered adequately for the vicissitudes of the African environment Although environmental unpredictability was recognized in the temperate zone by the mid nineteenth century the ecological theory which was subsequently developed and most widely accepted was based on concepts of norms and equilibria History has shown that the application of such ecological assumptions to African environments is wholly inappropriate This book argues that many methods used by West African smallholder farmers and pastoralists are properly adapted to the region s unpredictable physical environment Field examples from the semi arid and humid zones demonstrate the nature of environmental variability and the skill of indigenous farmers and pastoralists in exploiting this It is thus argued that development planners should where possible model development schemes on the more successful ecologically sound methods of indigenous land management The Oxford Handbook of Modern African History John Parker, Richard Reid, 2013-10-10 The Oxford Handbook of Modern African History represents an invaluable tool for historians and others in the field of African studies This collection of essays produced by some of the finest scholars currently working in the field provides the latest insights into and interpretations of the history of Africa a continent with a rich and complex past An understanding of this past is essential to gain perspective on Africa s current challenges and this accessible and comprehensive volume will allow readers to explore various aspects political economic social and cultural of the continent s history over the last two hundred years Since African history first emerged as a serious academic endeavour in the 1950s and 1960s it has undergone numerous shifts in terms of emphasis and approach changes brought about by political and economic exigencies and by ideological debates This multi faceted Handbook is essential reading for anyone with an interest in those debates and in Africa and its peoples While the focus is determinedly historical anthropology geography literary criticism political science and sociology are all employed in this ground breaking study of Africa s past Africa's Emerging Maize Revolution Derek Byerlee, Carl K. Eicher, 1997 Intended for policymakers and scholars the 15 contributions in this volume are divided into two sections the first provides six country case studies of the evolving maize economies of Zimbabwe Zambia Malawi Kenya Ghana and Nigeria The second part synthesizes major technological institutional and policy issues with chapters on research and extension soil fertility seed and fertilizer delivery systems and marketing and price policy Paper

Reconstructing Nature Peter Dickens, 2002-11-01 One of the main features of the contemporary environmental crisis is that no one has a clear idea of what is going on The author uses an extension of Marx's theory of alienation to explain why people find it so difficult to relate their different knowledges of the natural and social world He argues that nevertheless it is possible to relate these to the abstractions of ecological discourse Emancipation can come only through embracing science and rationality rather than rejecting them and in the process humanity as well as the non human world will benefit

Contested Agronomy James Sumberg, John Thompson, 2012-03-15 The dramatic increases in food prices experienced over the last four years and their effects of hunger and food insecurity as well as human induced climate change and its implications for agriculture food production and food security are key topics within the field of agronomy and agricultural research Contested Agronomy addresses these issues by exploring key developments since the mid 1970s focusing in particular on the emergence of the neoliberal project and the rise of the participation and environmental agendas taking into consideration how these have had profound impacts on the practice of agronomic research in the developing world especially over the last four decades This book explores through a series of case studies the basis for a much needed political agronomy analysis that highlights the impacts of problem framing and narratives historical disjunctures epistemic communities and the increasing pressure to demonstrate success on both agricultural research and the farmers processors and consumers it is meant to serve Whilst being a fascinating and thought provoking read for professionals in the Agriculture and Environmental sciences it will also appeal to students and researchers in agricultural policy development studies geography public administration rural sociology and science and technology studies UNRISD Social Development News, 1993 Land,

Labour and the Family in Southern Ghana Kojo Amanor, 2001 This report is based on field work carried out in the Akyem Abuakwa area of the forest region of Ghana a section of the country rich in agricultural land gold and diamonds Through the field work which was undertaken and the empirical material generated the author attempts to chart the processes and patterns of differentiation connected to land and land use in contemporary Ghana
