New Communications Landscape Demystifying Media Globalization:

The New Communications Landscape Anura Goonasekera, Jan Servaes, Georgette Wang, 2003-09-02 New Communications Landscape explores the theories of media globalization with emphasis on the areas of cultural and local television markets It focuses on the industry content and strategy audience policy and future research The New Communications

Landscape, 2000 The Myth of Media Globalization Kai Hafez, 2007-03-26 The ongoing interconnection of the world through modern mass media is generally considered to be one of the major developments underpinning globalization This important book considers anew the globalization phenomenon in the media sphere Rather than heralding globalization or warning of its dangers as in many other books Kai Hafez analyses the degree to which media globalization is really taking place Do we have enough evidence to show that there is a linear and accelerated move towards transnationalization in the media All too often the empirical data presented seems rather more anecdotal than representative Many transborder media phenomena are overestimated and taken out of the context of locally and nationally oriented mainstream media processes all over the world The inherent danger is that a central paradigm of the social sciences rather than bearing scholarly substance will turn out to be a myth and even a sometimes dangerously ideological tool Based on a theoretical debate of media globalization the work discusses most major fields of media development including foreign reporting satellite TV film internet foreign broadcasting media and migration media policy and media economy As an important new contribution to timely debates The Myth of Media Globalization will be essential and provocative reading for students and scholars alike Media

Globalization and the Discovery Channel Networks Ole J. Mjos, 2009-09-10 This book is about the relationship between media and globalization explored through the unique study of the global expansion of Discovery Communications spearheaded by the Discovery Channel one of the world's largest providers of factual television programming and media content The book argues that the study of Discovery's relationship with globalization provides both a specific and a more general practical and theoretical understanding of how the processes of increased linking and interweaving of media and communications unfold and develop as well as some of the consequences of this The Media in Arab Countries Tourya Gaaaybess, 2019-01-23 In early research work on international communication the countries of North Africa and the Middle East were seen as part of the Third World and the media had to be at the service of development However this situation is changing due to the transnationalization and liberalization of the media Indeed since the 1990s the entry of the South and Arab countries in this case into the information society has become the dominant creed although the vision is still globalizing and marked by stereotypes Representations of these societies are closely associated with international relations and geopolitics characterized by tensions and conflicts However a force has come to disrupt the traditional rules of the game Arab audiences Digital media the dissemination of which has been enabled by the implementation of the information society empowers them to participate fully in a media confluence This liberation from the discourse has two major consequences the media and journalism sector has become more strategic than ever and action toward development must be reinvented

Trauma and Media Allen Meek, 2011-02-09 This book provides the first comprehensive account of trauma as a critical concept in the study of modern visual media from Freud to the present day looking at how the psychoanalytic theory of trauma was adapted by the cultural critics Walter Benjamin Theodor Adorno Roland Barthes Jacques Derrida and Slavoj Žižek Aesthetic Practices and Politics in Media, Music, and Art Rocío G. Davis, Dorothea Fischer-Hornung, Johanna C.

Kardux, 2010-09-13 This volume analyzes innovative forms of media and music art installations television commercials photography films songs telenovelas to examine the performance of migration in contemporary culture Though migration studies and media studies are ostensibly different fields this transnational collection of essays addresses how their interconnection has shaped our understanding of the paradigms through which we think about migration ethnicity nation and the transnational Cultural representations intervene in collective beliefs Art and media clearly influence the ways the experience of migration is articulated and recalled intervening in individual perceptions as well as public policy To understand the connection between migration and diverse media the authors examine how migration is represented in film television music and art but also how media shape the ways in which host country and homeland are imagined Among the topics considered are new mediated forms for representing migration widening the perspective on the ways these representations may be analyzed readings of enactments of memory in trans and inter disciplinary ways and discussions of globalization and transnationalism inviting us to rethink traditional borders in respect to migration nation states as well as disciplines

The Global Public Sphere Ingrid Volkmer, 2014-07-17 Over the last several years the debate about publics seems to have newly emerged This debate critically reflects the Habermasian ideal of a national public sphere in a transnational context However it seems that the issue of a reconstruction of a global public sphere is more complex In this brilliant and provocative book Ingrid Volkmer argues that a reflective approach of globalization is required in order to identify and deconstruct key strata of deliberate public discourse in supra and subnational societal formations This construction helps to understand the new processes of legitimacy at the beginning of the 21st century in which the traditional conception of a public and its role as a legitimizing force are being challenged and transformed The book unfolds this key phenomenon of global deliberate interconnectedness as a discursive and negotiated dimension within reflective globalization i e continuously constituting maintaining and refining the life of the global public and conceptualizes a global public sphere Offering insightful case studies to illustrate this new theory of the global public sphere the book will be essential reading for students and scholars of media and communication studies and social and political theory Global Media Ethics and the Digital Revolution Nouredine Miladi, 2021-11-29 This volume responds to the challenges posed by the rapid developments in satellite TV and digital technologies addressing media ethics from a global perspective to discuss how we can understand journalism practice in its cultural contexts An international team of contributors draw upon global and non Western traditions to discuss the philosophical origins of ethics and the tension that exists between media institutions the media market and political ideological influencers The chapters then unveil the discrepancies among international journalists in abiding by the ethics of the profession and the extent to which media ethics are understood and applied in their local context environment Arguing that the legitimacy of ethics comes not from the definition per se but from the extent to which it leads to social good the book posits this should be the media's raison d'être to abide by globally accepted ethical norms in order to serve the common good Taking a truly global approach to the question of media ethics this volume will be an important resource for scholars and students of journalism communication studies media studies sociology politics and cultural studies

The Media and Political Change in Southeast Asia Jonathan Woodier, 2009-01-01 the book is in a comprehensive readable format the book is logically organised rich in data and statistics regarding the issues that it covers as well as accessibly written such that its points would not be lost on the average upper level undergraduate student with some preparation in Asian studies and the social sciences Jane M Ferguson South East Asia Research a serious academic work that should be on the official reading list of every media studies course Chris Roberts Presenter Sky News Jonathan Woodier has written an excellent book on the politics of media control in Southeast Asia He shows how political elites in the region are using major events such as the 1997 Asian Financial Crisis and the 2001 September 11 terror attacks as well as innovations in media tools such as public relations and the internet to control information flow to their citizens This book is a must read for anyone interested in an explanation why Southeast Asian models of authoritarian models are surviving A brilliant analysis it combines media theory with a critical discussion of contemporary developments in Asia James Gomez Keio University Japan True to the old Chinese adage kill a chicken scare a monkey the few who once challenged Southeast Asia's ruling elites disappeared and the majority were silent Crude but effective Modern times however demand a more sophisticated approach Ruling elites now strip cultures naked and micro manage people's minds Their preferred tools of penetration and manipulation are a compliant media and a money hungry PR industry Jonathan Woodier's insights will ensure that you will never read a newspaper or watch TV news in quite the same way again Trevor Watson Professional Public Relations Pty Ltd Australia This is an engaging and informative analysis of the media landscape in South East Asia It uncovers the pervasive impact of the global media on the political process and raises important academic and policy issues in the process This book is timely and will be a must read for policymakers academics and students across communications media studies politics and democratization as well as for everyone with an interest in current day developments in South East Asia Joep Cornelissen Leeds University Business School UK Jonathan Woodier's latest work considers what impact the media has upon the democratization process in Southeast Asia Has the media had a liberalizing effect or become subject to elite control in Southeast Asia and if so why What role does the global media play in this process particularly given its conglomerization and commoditization By examining the communications media and its relationship to political change in Southeast Asia this fascinating study will endeavour to provide both a regional comparative analysis and a more balanced interpretation of the mass communication media in the wake of September 11 2001 The book also investigates the durability of authoritarian regimes and the enduring capacity of the media controlled state alongside the growing sophistication of political communications particularly the use of PR consultants The author provides an insider s view with unique insights into the practice of political communication and its development throughout the strategically important region of Southeast Asia with its large Moslem states as well as much further afield to countries such as China and post industrial Europe As such the book will be warmly welcomed by academics of politics international relations media communications and PR It will also appeal to researchers interested in political change the rise of the global media giants and the influence of authoritarian states such as China
