New Directions in Cognitive Science, 200? Development in Context Robert H. Wozniak, Kurt W. Fischer, 2014-02-04 In this volume leading developmentalists address the question of how children's thinking develops in context by drawing on the theories of Vygotsky Gibson and Piaget Analyses of the ecology and the dynamics of behavior have become popular emphasizing the particulars of people acting in specific environments and the many complex factors of human body and mind that contribute to action and thought This volume brings together many of the current efforts to deal with development in this richly ecological dynamic way The research reported demonstrates that recent years have produced major shifts in approach Activities are studied as they naturally occur in everyday contexts Children's active construction of the world around them is treated as fundamentally social in nature occurring in families with peers and in cultures Behavior is studied not as something disembodied but within a rich matrix of body emotion belief value and physical world Behavior is analyzed as changing dynamically not only over seconds and minutes but over hours days and years

Radman, 2012-02-14 A volume devoted explicitly to the subtle and multidimensional phenomenon of background knowing that has to be recognized as an important element of the triad mind body world The essays are inspired by seminal works on the topic by Searle and Dreyfus but also make significant contribution in bringing the discussion beyond the classical confines

Action, Perception and the Brain J. Schulkin, 2012-02-07 Theories of brain evolution stress communication and sociality are essential to our capacity to represent objects as intersubjectively accessible How did we grow as a species to be able to recognize objects as common as that which can also be seen in much the same way by others Such constitution of intersubjectively accessible objects is bound up with our flexible and sophisticated capacities for social cognition understanding others and their desires intentions emotions and moods which are crucial to the way human beings live This book is about contemporary philosophical and neuroscientific perspectives on the relation of action perception and cognition as it is lived in embodied and socially embedded experience This emphasis on embodiment and embeddedness is a change from traditional theories which focused on isolated representational and conceptual cognition In the new perspectives contained in our book such pure cognition is thought to be under girded and interpenetrated by embodied and embedded processes
