New Directions In Economic And Social History:

New Directions in Economic and Social History Anne Digby, C. H. Feinstein, 1989 This is a collection of essays on the subjects of agriculture economy society and labour covering major events in British social history and the impact of such factors as imperialism and the Industrial Revolution British Economic and Social History R. C. Richardson, William Henry Chaloner, 1996 New Directions in Social and Cultural History Sasha Handley, Rohan McWilliam, Lucy Noakes, 2018-02-22

What does it mean to be a social and cultural historian today In the wake of the cultural turn and in an age of digital and public history what challenges and opportunities await historians in the early 21st century In this exciting new text leading historians reflect on key developments in their fields and argue for a range of new directions in social and cultural history Focusing on emerging areas of historical research such as the history of the emotions and environmental history New Directions in Social and Cultural History is an invaluable guide to the current and future state of the field The book is divided into three clear sections each with an editorial introduction and covering key thematic areas histories of the human the material world and challenges and provocations Each chapter in the collection provides an introduction to the key and recent developments in its specialist field with their authors then moving on to argue for what they see as particularly important shifts and interventions in the theory and methodology and suggest future developments New Directions in Social and Cultural History provides a comprehensive and insightful overview of this burgeoning field which will be important reading for all students and scholars of social and cultural history and historiography New Directions in European Historiography Georg G. Iggers, 1984-07 Impressive analytical essays on the transformation of historical studies in Europe In four impressively researched essays Georg Iggers recounts the transformation of historical studies in Europe during the twentieth century with particular emphasis on the historiography of the past fifteen years Although the book does survey a broad area of contemporary historical thought it is primarily a careful analytical examination of the methodological and theoretical reorientation of certain influential European historians The first essay discusses the emergence at German Universities during the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries of the concept of history as a scientific discipline distinct from the classical tradition of literary history and the later broad acceptance of this mode of Enquiry in the Western world Against this background Mr Iggers then considers the challenge to this mode of the political social and intellectual upheavals of the twentieth century especially after World War II The three essays following examine important attempts to develop alternate paradigms for historical study the French historians of the Annales tradition the German political historians of the 1960s the various Marxist historians of France Poland East Germany and Great Britain In despite of the frequent insistence by philosophers and theorists of history that history is not a science in contemporary terms historians themselves have striven in recent years to strengthen the quantitative aspects of historical study moving away from traditional patterns of writing and adopting methods and concepts from the systematic social sciences Mr Iggers book is an excellent introduction to these contemporary changes in historiography and in its comparative analyses itself makes a contribution to historical studies

New Directions in Local History Since Hoskins Christopher Dyer, Andrew James Hopper, Evelyn Lord, Nigel J. Tringham, 2011 Local history in Britain can trace its origins back to the sixteenth century and before but it was given inspiration and a new sense of direction in the 1950s and 60s by the work of W G Hoskins This book marks the fiftieth anniversary of the publication of his Local history in England which was designed to help people researching the history of their own villages and towns It is the result of a collaboration between academic historians in the Centre for English Local History at the University of Leicester which Hoskins founded and the British Association for Local History an organisation that brings together the thousands of people who are not professional academics but who practise local history Taking the work of Hoskins as a starting point the contributors show how local history is being researched and written today Fifteen historians write about a variety of local history subjects which are significant in their own right but which also point to current trends in the subject They show how local historians use their sources systematically from the non verbal evidence of buildings to various types of electronic resources All periods between the middle ages and the early twenty first century are explored as are many different parts of the country from Skye to the Kent coast There are examples of local historians working on ethnic minorities gender and the working class Those who study localities use a variety of approaches including those of social economic religious legal intellectual and cultural history all of which are employed here They are aware of the roots of their subject and examine the history of local history itself Together the editors and authors raise the various dilemmas which stimulate debates among local historians about the nature of the subject its present health and the directions it will take in the next half century

Studies in Economic and Social History Michael Oliver, 2017-11-01 This title was first published in 2002 There are few students of European economic history who will not have come across the writings of Derek H Aldcroft His contributions to the field of economic and social history are vast and distinguish him as one of the most prolific economic historians of the 20th century This volume honours Derek s contribution to the literature of economic and social history and its contents reflect his wide ranging interests particularly on issues relating to transport history and the growth and structural change in economies From transport in the Industrial Revolution to late 20th century international financial architecture the essays in this book contributed by leading economic historians are a tribute to a remarkable scholar
