Local Businesses Kathel Austin Kerr, Amos J. Loveday, Mansel G. Blackford, 1990 With this volume the Nearby History Series will lead you on a journey to discover how the businesses in your community helped shape its present form Providing fundamental information on the processes of investigating a business heritage Local Businesses acts as a complete guide for local historians and historical societies business historians business owners local citizens museum workers and librarians interested in examining this aspect of local history Local Businesses is Volume 5 in The Nearby History Series Annals of Iowa, 1991 History News, 1994 Transport Policy: Learning Lessons from History Colin Divall, Julian Hine, 2017-05-15 The key aim of this volume is to demonstrate ways in which an understanding of history can be used to inform present day transport and mobility policies This is not to say that history repeats itself or that every contemporary transport dilemma has an historical counterpart rather the contributors to this book argue that in many contexts of transport planning a better understanding of the context and consequences of past decisions and processes could lead to more effective policy decisions Collectively the authors explore the ways in which the methods and approaches of historical research may be applied to contemporary transport and policy issues across a wide range of transport modes and contexts By linking two bodies of academic research that for the most part remain separate this volume helps to inform current transport and mobility policies and to stimulate innovative new research that links studies of both past and present mobilities

Space Exploration Carolyn Collins Petersen, 2017-11-15 This detailed examination of our steps into space is viewed from our potential future there on Mars to be exact and considers how we will reach that point A Girl Can Do: Recognizing and Representing Girlhood Tiffany R. Isselhardt, 2022-07-12 How do scholars research and interpret marginalized populations especially those that are seldom recognized as marginalized or whose sources are believed to be rare Combining intersectional feminism and public history methodologies A Girl Can Do Recognizing and Representing Girlhood reflects on how girlhood is found researched and interpreted in museums archives and historic sites Defining girl as self identifying females under the age of 21 A Girl Can Do lays the groundwork for understanding girlhood its constructs and its marginalization while providing faculty students and working professionals with ten case studies on researching and working with girlhood Contributors include archaeologists archivists curators educators and historians who demonstrate how adding a girl studies lens fosters greater inclusivity and diversity in our work Whether studying spatial techniques of marginalization in colonial Peru the daybooks as records of girlhood in late nineteenth century Sweden or collaborating with self identifying fangirls to produce a pop up exhibition the contributors demonstrate the variety of sources and methods that can be used to interpret this oft overlooked population Throughout A Girl Can Do petitions for collaborative and creative thinking in how we can reframe and reinterpret our sources both traditional and overlooked to shed new light on how girls have contributed to and provide frames of reference for human history and culture Spaces that Tell Stories Donna R. Braden, 2019-07-12

Historical environments delight visitors because of their ability to make them feel transported to another time and place. These environments found in both museum exhibitions and historic structures are usually rich with objects that hint at deeper stories and context. But these spaces often lack rigor in terms of historical and interpretive methodology along with a thoughtful and purposeful integration of storytelling principles. Spaces That Tell Stories: Creating Historical Environments offers a fresh look at historical environments providing a roadmap for applying this rigor and integrating these principles into the creation of such environments. It begins by delving into the power of these environments for museum visitors drawing upon multiple cross disciplinary fields. An in depth how to methodology follows which begins with the steps of framing the project by aligning it with institutional goals defining audiences involving visitor studies and inviting community engagement. It continues through the steps of researching creating interpreting refining and evaluating the impact of the environment. The author's methodology is applicable to environments in both historic structures and museum exhibits from different eras places and topics. It is also scalable to museums varying sizes and budgets. To give a sense of how the methodology laid out in this book translates into real world practice detailed case studies appear throughout along with practical tips checklists charts descriptive photographs and source lists. An extensive bibliography follows. Spaces That Tell Stories: Creating Historical Environments is a unique contribution to the museum field. It is a must read for museum professionals installing or upgrading historic environments while the methodology and case studies also offer practical strategies for other museum professionals working with collections exhibitions and interpretation and how these are integrated thoughtful insights into museum practice for students and a helpful toolkit for local historians.

Early Modern Streets Danielle van den Heuvel, 2022-12-23 For the first time Early Modern Streets unites the diverse strands of scholarship on urban streets between circa 1450 and 1800 and tackles key questions on how early modern urban society was shaped and how this changed over time. Much of the lives of urban dwellers in early modern Europe were played out in city streets and squares. By exploring urban spaces in relation to themes such as politics economies religion and crime this edited collection shows that streets were not only places where people came together to work shop and eat but also to fight celebrate show their devotion and express their grievances. The volume brings together scholars from different backgrounds and applies new approaches and methodologies to the historical study of urban experience. In doing so Early Modern Streets provides a comprehensive overview of one of the most dynamic fields of scholarship in early modern history. Accompanied by over 50 illustrations Early Modern Streets is the perfect resource for all students and scholars interested in urban life in early modern Europe.
