

Public procurement law in the EC internal market 1992: the second coming of the European champion

BY FRIEDL WEISS*

I. Introduction

A. The state in the economy

The practice of public procurement, i.e., the purchase of goods and services by public authorities, agencies and enterprises for governmental purposes has had a long and largely unnoticed history going back to ancient Roman times. Indeed, it is scarcely remarkable that public bodies, like everyone else, need to consume goods and services in order to function. However, the relative obscurity of this activity was ended in the wake of the cataclysmic economic and social upheavals following the two World Wars of this century. Roosevelt's New Deal and the Marshall Plan in particular reflected an awareness that the massive task of the reconstruction of critically depressed or war-ravaged economies could not solely be entrusted to the free play of market forces.
