Thomas J. Whalen, 2014-05-23 The famed 19th century humorist Finely Peter Dunne once commented that life would not be worth living if we didn't keep our enemies. Certainly John F Kennedy could appreciate the wisdom behind this observation. At nearly every stage of his noteworthy political career which stretched from the dank run down tenement houses of Charlestown Massachusetts in 1946 to the gleaming downtown skyscrapers of Dallas Texas in 1963 Kennedy had collected his fair share of enemies. Some like Henry Cabot Lodge Jr in 1952 and Lyndon Johnson in 1960 presented formidable political obstacles to his attaining higher office. Others like Nikita Khrushchev during the Cuban Missile Crisis of 1962 threatened the very survival of the human race itself. Regardless of the stakes Kennedy always seemed to rise to the level of the domestic or international challenge presented. Our problems are man made therefore they may be solved by man he said. To those who knew him best this single mindedness was not surprising. He clearly wanted to establish a place in history insisted Robert McNamara Kennedy's Secretary of Defense. But being an historian himself Kennedy realized that political success did not come easily or cheaply. It required individual strength of character clarity of thought and the ability to act decisively. There are risks and costs to action he allowed. But they are far less than the long range risks of comfortable inaction. Revisiting

Marion, 2011-08-10 From Eisenhower to Obama this book provides a comprehensive analysis of the policies Congress and the president have proposed and passed to protect the environment over time. Since that time Congress and the president have considered and passed numerous environmental policies laws that serve to protect the quality of the air we breathe the water we drink the natural beauty of the land and the animals that live both on land and in the water. In Making Environmental Law: The Politics of Protecting the Earth experienced and accomplished environmental law researcher Nancy E Marion shows what policies Congress have proposed and passed to protect the environment over time.
